COUNCIL IS FACING SHOWDOWN TODAY IN POLICE CHAOS

City council this afternoon is expected to move to solve the police administration problem.

Creation of a new committee of five members to administer the department, in lieu of the original group appointed by Key, appeared yesterday to be the favored plan of a majority of members of council although Key's request that council concur in his revocation of their appointments had considerable support.

The mayor's program, however, met an opinion by City Attorney Jack C. Savage holding it illegal. Coupled with the determined fight of Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the originally named 1936 police committee, to keep his position, this was believed to have doomed Key's chances.

Showdown Expected.

A showdown on the police situation, which reached an impasse more than two weeks ago when Councilman Bridges withdrew from a committee session, asserting that Councilman J. Allen Couch, committee storm center "is drunk or something," was clearly indicated yesterday.

Key has demanded the resignation of committee members and has those of all except Bridges. The chairman, however, has refused to even consider quitting "while under fire and for something someone else did" and has announced he will fight to retain his position.

The key message to council announcing his revocation of committee appointments and asking ratification in order that he can name a new committee, probably will be the first police measure to be considered by council.

It is anticipated, however, that this measure will be filed without any action and that Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon, second ward, backed by several other members of council, will then present the measure designed to wrest police control from the originally appointed police committee and to vest it in a new group to be designated by the mayor.

It was apparent yesterday that council considers that something should be done to solve the police situation.

48 HURLED INTO BAY As Boat Is Crashed

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Forty-eight persons were spilled into Sheepshead bay late today when a fishing boat was cut in half in a collision with another vessel.

Brooklyn police headquarters reported one man died of a heart attack during the excitement. The others were rescued by boats in the vicinity. The fishing boat carried a crowd of Sunday excursionists.

LEFTISTS CLAIM FRENCH VICTORY

Former Premier Edouard
Herriot and Paul Reynaud
Are Re-elected.

PARIS, May 4.—(Monday)—(AP)—The Leftist "people's front" won an overwhelming victory in France's election for a new chamber of deputies, with 378 seats guaranteeing it a substantial working majority, returns from all but four of the 518 electoral districts showed today.

PARIS, May 3.—(AP)—Early returns in France's runoff election of the chamber of deputies today showed a marked tendency toward the left.

With only 15 of 618 returns missing late tonight the ministry of the interior gave leftists 315 seats. Socialists, with 145, displaced radical socialists as the strongest party in the chamber and are entitled to first chance at the premiership.

Communists won 81 seats.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot, who was forced into the runoff last Sunday when he trailed an opponent, was re-elected, as was Paul Reynaud, former minister of finance and a leading advocate of devaluation.

433 Seats at Stake.

Ballots were cast to fill 433 seats in a runoff election where candidates failed to obtain majorities last Sunday. When 185 seats were filled, only a plurality was necessary for election today.

The "people's front," particularly communists, showed great strength a week ago it was expected to win more than half the seats. The first ballot gave it 54 seats and opponents, including eight anti-front radical-socialists, gained the remainder.

The cabinet of Premier Albert Sarraut, which may resign when the new chamber meets June 1 but probably not before, intends to try to pick up France's financial and foreign policies at a meeting early this week.

During campaign uncertainty, prices on the stock exchange fluctuated sharply, while gold continued to flow abroad from the Bank of France.

The foreign office at the same time, admitted it was merely marking time until after the elections, since it was unwilling to make commitments which might come tomorrow.

Karpis Questioned.

Karpis was questioned in the Department of Justice office, where other members of his notorious gang previously had faced their captors, some to talk and others to be shunted along to Alcatraz prison for life.

Of more than two-score persons originally indicted in connection with the kidnappings of Hamm and Edward G. Bremer, members of two of the wealthiest families in the northwest, only one man remained free—Harry Campbell, lame outlaw last seen with Karpis in Atlantic City.

In addition to the kidnappings, which he is alleged to have engineered, the federal agents quizzed Karpis on more than a dozen spectacular bank robberies, several daring mail robberies and a number of killings.

Missouri officials attempted to have the mobster taken to West Plains, Mo., to stand trial for the killing of Sheriff C. R. Kelley on December 19, 1931. They pointed out that Karpis could be executed on this first-degree murder charge, but would escape with a life term at most for either the Bremer or Hamm kidnappings.

Greta, Back in U. S., 'Just a Wanderer'

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Greta Garbo, who bade adieu to America a year ago with "I tank I go home now," came back today and said: "I have no home. I'm just a wanderer."

The wanderer, frightened, nervous, wan-looking, paced the deck of the liner Orizaba, in from Sweden.

This time the Garbo, who has traveled as Jane Smith, Greta Berger, Gussie Berger, Joan Emerson and Great Gustafsson, was plain Mary Holmquist, without escort or maid.

She will go to Hollywood the end of the week.

AGENTS CONTINUE TO GRILL KARPIS

U. S. Officials Seek List of Those Who Aided
Him in Crime Career.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 3.—(AP)—A secret quiz of Alvin Karpis, "Public Enemy No. 1," was continued today by federal agents determined to draw from the gangster's own lips a list of those who aided his two-year flight from the law.

A heavy guard barred the federal court building doors behind which Karpis was hustled after being flown here from New Orleans to answer kidnapping charges.

The department's determination to make a decisive mop-up of the Karpis-Barker mob's camp followers was announced by J. Edgar Hoover, investigation bureau agent. Before leaving for New York, he predicted arrest of some Karpis hangers-on and friends.

How soon the captured public enemy would be turned over to the United States marshal for arraignment and imprisonment was still undetermined, although Hoover had said arraignment on the William Hamm kidnapping might come tomorrow.

Karpis was questioned in the Department of Justice office, where other members of his notorious gang previously had faced their captors, some to talk and others to be shunted along to Alcatraz prison for life.

Of more than two-score persons originally indicted in connection with the kidnappings of Hamm and Edward G. Bremer, members of two of the wealthiest families in the northwest, only one man remained free—Harry Campbell, lame outlaw last seen with Karpis in Atlantic City.

In addition to the kidnappings, which he is alleged to have engineered, the federal agents quizzed Karpis on more than a dozen spectacular bank robberies, several daring mail robberies and a number of killings.

They pointed out that Karpis could be executed on this first-degree murder charge, but would escape with a life term at most for either the Bremer or Hamm kidnappings.

Face Kidnap Charge.

United States District Attorney George F. Sullivan said the government intends to try Karpis for either of the kidnappings. Prosecution on additional charges would be within the discretion of Attorney General Homer Cummings or investigation Bureau Chief Hoover, who personally captured Karpis in New Orleans on Friday and escorted him to St. Paul.

Indicted with Karpis for the Hamm kidnapping are six others, including

WEEK OF HEARINGS IMPEDES TAX BILL

Approval Hinges on Votes of Several Democrats
Who Are Uncommitted.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—A survey of sentiment in the senate finance committee on the administration tax bill showed today its approval hinged on the votes of several democratic senators who have not yet committed themselves.

Nevertheless, administration leaders, counting on the democrats lining up for the measure in the end, expressed confidence it would be approved by the committee and passed by the senate without any fundamental changes.

In fact, congressional chieftains had their eyes turned toward the calendar, rather than the committee line-up, as they noted the long list of witnesses waiting to testify on the bill.

With at least a week more of hearings in prospect, they realize the tax bill forms the biggest question mark in plans for adjourning congress before the national political conventions next month. Even should hearings be finished this week, it would be the middle of May before the measure could reach the senate floor.

There, it is certain to run into prolonged debate. Already there are threats of attempts to hook several other controversial proposals onto it, including war taxes and an amendment to the social security law.

The other vital pre-adjournment measure—the deficiency bill with its $1,500,000,000 relief fund—is scheduled to come up late this week in the house and reach the senate sometime next week.

The senate hearing tomorrow will hear officials of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

With the republicans expected to vote solidly against the bill, a few dissenting democratic votes would throw the committee against the tax bill. Senator King, democrat, Utah, has already declared against it, and several of his colleagues are still hesitating.

Hesitating Democrats.

Among the democrats not yet ready to commit themselves on the bill are Senators Gerry, of Rhode Island; Clark, of Missouri; Byrd, of Virginia; Bailey, of North Carolina. Bailey's questions during the public hearings have been more hostile on the surface than any others, but he said

Puppet Ruler, To Succeed Negus, Envisaged by League as Duce's Aim

GENEVA, May 3.—(AP)—Members of the League of Nations generally anticipated tonight that Premier Mussolini would put a puppet emperor upon the throne of Ethiopia and quickly make a peace treaty upon his own terms.

An Italian spokesman emphasized Italy always recognized the existence of Ethiopia. From this it was deduced that Il Duce will continue to recognize an independent Amharic state, though probably under Italian supervision with the remainder of the country passing to Italy in the form of a colony or mandate.

If Mussolini signs a peace treaty with a new emperor some diplomats here believe it would be difficult for the League to ignore such a treaty. From this standpoint the League's task would be simplified, they said.

On the other hand, it would be difficult for the League to give its benefit to an arrangement achieved

FRANCE PROPOSES PARLEYS TO FIX RIGHTS IN ETHIOPIA

Establishment of Zones of Influence Suggested;
Italy Asked To Hurry
Occupation of Capital.

PARIS, May 3.—(AP)—A three-power conference between Great Britain, France and Italy to fix new zones of influence for them in Ethiopia now that an Italian conquest is accepted as certain was suggested tonight in French quarters close to the foreign office.

At the same time, France urged Italy to hasten its army's advance upon Addis Ababa to protect foreigners there.

A foreign office spokesman disclosed that Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin telegraphed Premier Mussolini that two Armenians under French protection were killed by rioting natives in Addis Ababa. Rome immediately ordered the advance guard to speed its march upon the capital and the soldiers were only a few miles away, officials said.

These sources close to the foreign office said League of Nations governments probably would refuse to recognize any new government which Italy might set up in Ethiopia. It was pointed out that this might prove a serious handicap to Italy in attempting to obtain capital to develop the country, thus sharply cutting down the value of the conquest.

Elections Watched.

France's future line of action depends on the outcome of today's chamber elections, with a leftist victory likely to reinforce her stand against negotiations outside the League. Moderate parties are more friendly toward Italy.

Officially indicated sanctions would be maintained pending settlement of Ethiopia's fate.

It was said in diplomatic circles that Great Britain must accept Premier Mussolini's victory or fight Italy.

400,000 FASCISTS TO REMAIN ABROAD

Duce, in Speech to Peasants, Tells of Colonization Plans in Ethiopia.

By ANDRUE BERDING.

ROME, May 3.—(AP)—At least 400,000 of the 500,000 Italian soldiers and workmen in Africa will remain there as settlers, Premier Mussolini indicated today in a speech to rural peasants.

The peasants gathered at the Venezia palace to receive presents for a long tenure on the land and excellence in agriculture. Romans, meanwhile, continued to celebrate Emperor Haile Selassie's flight from Addis Ababa.

Il Duce was in the greatest good humor and began his speech by eulogizing the Italian people for their agricultural products on a table before him in the royal hall.

After praising the land, he declared: "At least 400,000 of the 500,000 men in the center of Africa are peasants who, while marching and fighting, do not forget the land. They boast about it, take some area, contrast it with Italy, and they foresee the possibility of carrying to those depopulated lands our valorous and fecund families of the Italian race."

Premier Mussolini was dressed in the green uniform of a corporal of the fascist militia. He paid high tribute to peasants fighting in Africa, saying "they have never protested

BOARDS WARSHIP FOR GREAT BRITAIN

Imperial Train Loaded
With Several Tons of Baggage; Italian News-
papermen, Natives Fight

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, May 3.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie and his imperial family reached the sanctuary of French soil and a British destroyer today after a precipitate two-night flight from the capital of his crumbling empire.

The little "King of Kings," now another exile, boarded the destroyer Diana, sent here by the British government, and will sail shortly for Aden, Arabia, en route to England.

Refusing to make a declaration as to his intentions, the emperor—appearing very thin and tired—asked the French governor, upon his arrival, to bar newspapermen from the railroad station.

An Italian who attempted to photograph the negus was prevented from doing so by Ethiopians and several blows were exchanged. The incident took place in front of the Ethiopian consulate.

Emperor Barchanded.

Several Italian newspapermen and secretaries of the Italian legation silently watched the little one-time ruler leave the train. He was barchanded and wore white clothing with a light brown cape.

Several ministers and a number of other officials accompanied the negus. The train arrived 35 minutes late. It was composed of special cars, including a sleeping car and a club car.

Among officials to greet the imperial family were the French civil and imperial governors and their staff officers in dress uniforms.

The Empress Menen was the first to get off the train, followed by Haile Selassie and Crown Prince Asfa Wosane, but neither Prince Makonnen nor the little princesses were seen. The emperor was heavily veiled and appeared to be overcome by emotion.

Guard of Honor.

The small crowd at the station was described as the boiling heat, which kept most of the population indoors. A company of Senegalese troops formed a guard of honor, presenting arms as the defeated emperor walked between two rows of troops. (Presumably they went to legations, where thousands of foreigners are quartered.)

After leaving the railroad station, the imperial family rode to the governor's palace in automobiles supplied by the government. There they were also saluted by troops. A double line of Senegalese sharpshooters was drawn up outside the entrance.

By then a large crowd had assembled.

Cobb Says: Cough Is Much Better

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., May 3.

In response to large numbers who wrote or wired, I would state that either I'm getting over my influenza, or maybe I'm just getting used to it. Its latest whimsical notion was to settle in both ears and now should it thunder, a rare occurrence out here, in order for me to get the benefit of the phenomenon, I'll have to thunder again—and louder. However, being temporarily deaf has its advantages: I don't hear the dull things other people say, but can still enjoy the bright things I say, myself.

On the other hand, my cough is better. When I let go, the neighbors no longer think Old Bugle, the trusty crowd dog, must have treed some game over at the Cobb house.

As will be noted, I'm back from Palm Springs, where I cooked in the desert sunshine until all I needed to do, before being served, was to drap a sprig of water-cress across my brow and thicken the gravy with a little brown flour. Driving in, I kept trying up traffic: so many motorists mistook my face for a stop sign.

Should I relapse I'm going to try to throw myself into the epizootic. That's a horse disease, but I've been as sick as a horse and had to be as strong as a horse to live through it—and anyhow I know a good horse doctor.

American Is Killed

FIRE AND PILLAGING GRIP ADDIS ABABA

City, Abandoned by Negus, Looted by Natives, Littered With Corpses.

ADDIS ABABA, May 3.—(By the Associated Press and Other American Correspondents Collaborating in Use of Limited Wire Facilities)—Fire, pillaging, murder and anarchy raged in governmentless Addis Ababa today, with an American woman killed by a bullet from marauders as she slept.

The French legation reported 21 foreigners were killed, most of them Armenian or Greek merchants attempting to defend their stores.

The first reported fatality among foreigners was Mrs. N. A. Stadin, wife of an American missionary doctor. She was killed at dawn when a bullet pierced the galvanized roof of the Seventh Day Adventist mission, where she was sleeping.

Pillaging Breaks Out.

A great portion of the population was pillaging, firing and even burning, determined to raze the capital before the imminent arrival of the conquering Italian army.

Foreign correspondents who had barricaded themselves in their own compound near the government radio station were forced to abandon it under fire shortly before dawn. (Presumably they went to legations, where thousands of foreigners are quartered.)

A definite reaction set in, however, after the wild orgy of yesterday, as amateur "shifitas" (warriors) strove to defend their mistogotten gains against the true warriors.

The looters also heard the retelling could be anticipated for their

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—An American woman medical missionary was slain during unrestrained rioting in Addis Ababa early today a few hours before the American minister reported to the State Department a mob was believed to be approaching his legation.

The first American victim of the Italo-Ethiopian War, whose skull was pierced by a stray bullet, was Mrs. A. R. Stadin, of Loma Linda, Cal., wife of a doctor attached to the Seventh Day Adventist mission in the Ethiopian capital.

The American minister reported to the State Department late tonight women and children had been evacuated from the American legation in Addis Ababa with the assistance of British diplomatic officials but the 7 male members of the American staff and 6 other men there intended to hold out at the legation.

A message dispatched at 11 p. m., Ethiopian time, by the legation's wireless, revealed the British legation had sent three trucks with a military escort in which women and children in the legation, including nurses, had been escorted to safety within the well-fortified British compound.

Minister Engert's wife, however, remained with her husband and his staff.

A British truck left with the minister in case it becomes necessary to evacuate completely.

With the vanguard of the Italian army presumed to be within a few miles of Addis Ababa, Minister Cor-

Speeding Motorcycle Knocks Man 45 Feet

Struck by a speeding motorcycle at 11:30 a. m. last night on Peachtree street at the junction of Broad street, Arthur McEre, of 80 Broad street, owner of the McEre Shirt Company, was knocked more than 45 feet and critically injured.

He was taken to Grady hospital in an unconscious condition, suffering from a fractured skull, fractured nose, a broken leg and internal injuries. Hospital attaches said his condition was extremely critical.

Witnesses who saw the accident said the man was knocked more than 45 feet by the impact but the negro riding the motorcycle kept his balance and sped away. A piece of metal, thought to be the riding stand, was knocked off the motorcycle, as was the negro's hat, which might lead to his identification, according to police.

U. S. AGENTS CONTINUE TO QUESTION KARPIS

four already held in jail here—Edmund C. Bartholmey, former Bensenville (Ill.) acting postmaster; John F. (Jack) Peller, proprietor of a St. Paul night club; Charles (Big Fitz) Fitzgerald, reputed bank robber and safe cracker, and Byron (Machine Gun) Bolton.

Bolton and Bartholmey waived immunity and appeared before the federal grand jury which indicted the seven. Both are expected to be star witnesses for the government at the trial.

Hennepin county authorities said tonight they would seek the indictment of Karpis on charges of murder and bank robbery in Minneapolis.

Ed J. Goff, Hennepin county attorney, said he would ask the indictment of Karpis in connection with the slaying of two policemen and a motorist in the holdup of Minneapolis' Third Northwestern National Bank in 1932. Goff said he planned to ask witnesses of the robbery to view Karpis this week, adding that if they named him as one of the robbers, the evidence would be presented to the grand jury.

"RUTH" AND HUNTER AGAIN QUESTIONED
NEW ORLEANS, May 3.—(AP)—"Ruth," the red-haired beauty of perplexing identity in the Karpis case, appeared to be talking today in her temporary prison in the offices of the Bureau of Investigation the federal building in New Orleans.

Ruth and Fred Hunter, an alleged

Ohio mail robber, were arrested late Friday with Alvin Karpis, accused Hamm and Bremer kidnaper, in their apartment here during a swift raid carried out without firing by J. Edgar Hoover and his army of at least a score of federal agents.

Karpis was rushed by airplane to St. Paul, where he was being secretly questioned today under federal indictments in the kidnappings, while his two companions were still under secret investigation by David Magee, head of the New Orleans bureau, and his operatives.

KARPIS' TROUBLE LAID TO WOMAN
WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—The gangster's love of "Doll" led Alvin Karpis into his three closest scrapes with the law.

The red-headed woman who was arrested with the "Public Enemy No. 1" in New Orleans Friday night was only the latest in a string of women he had picked up and dropped during his crime career.

A few weeks earlier, Karpis narrowly escaped from a farmhouse near Hot Springs, Ark., only hours before federal agents and postoffice inspectors raided it with gas. Agents said a woman was behind his frequent trips to Hot Springs.

But his favorite was probably Dolores Delaney, the pretty girl he met in Harry Sawyer's saloon in St. Paul. Dolores was a "good moll," known in the gang for being as tight-lipped as Karpis himself. Old Kate "Ma" Barker picked her personally.

THOMAS COUNTY MOB LYNCHES NEGRO MAN

Victim of Infuriated Throng Admitted Killing Young White Man.

PAVO, Ga., May 3.—(AP)—John Rushin, 55-year-old negro farm laborer, was lynched near here late today by a mob to which he confessed he killed Marion Pate, 24-year-old white man.

Deputy Sheriff Herbert Kennedy, of Thomas county, said the negro was taken from him by a mob of "about 200 people" after he had arrested Rushin in connection with the slaying of Pate, which occurred near the scene of the lynching earlier in the day.

Kennedy said that before the mob spirited the negro away someone asked Rushin if he killed Pate and that the negro replied "yes" and added he had also robbed Pate.

The lynching was the second for Georgia and the third for the south in less than a week.

Body Found Near Creek.
Rushin's body was found on the bank of a creek near a field where Kennedy had arrested him. The body was pierced with bullet holes and a deep wound ran across the scalp.

Immediately after the body was discovered, Coroner C. T. Cooper impelled a jury to investigate the lynching but could get no information as to the identity of members of the mob.

C. H. Green, one of the jurors, said that some time after finding of the body, a negro undertaker who was called was "scared away" and the lynching victim's body was dragged out to the yard of a negro schoolhouse and left there.

He said Pavo policemen were on guard at the schoolyard and that members of the coroner's jury had telephoned Judge W. E. Thomas, of

Thomas county superior court, in near-by Thomasville to "get something done about it."

Investigation Ordered.
He said Judge Thomas assured an immediate investigation when he was called late tonight.

Before the negro's arrest another coroner's jury had investigated Pate's death and decided he was slain "by John Rushin."

Kennedy said bloodhounds were set on Rushin's trail and he was notified early this afternoon the negro had been captured. He found Rushin in the hands of "some 200 people," he said, near the scene of Pate's slaying and took him into custody.

As he started for his automobile with his prisoner, Kennedy said someone called him and as he turned to reply, the mob rushed in and again seized Rushin.

He was unable to follow the men because the ignition switch key had been removed from his automobile, the deputy related.

Kennedy said he saw no guns in the crowd. Informed later the negro had been lynched he started a search and discovered the victim's body.

today he was merely seeking information.

"My whole attitude is one of inquiry," Bailey said. "I know how greatly this bill relates to the welfare of the industries of my state."

Nevertheless, Bailey suggested last week that the "most constructive" way to balance the budget might be to let business recover as quickly as possible and realize increased revenue from present tax rates rather than to impose new levies.

While the finance committee resumes its tax hearings tomorrow, the senate will begin debate on the Wheeler bill to strengthen the federal trade commission law. The house will consider minor bills.

PRESBYTERIANS SHOW
GAIN IN RELIEF FUNDSAnnual Report Reveals
$212,460.02 Received During Year.

RICHMOND, Va., May 3.—(AP)—The Southern Presbyterian Committee on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief received a total of $212,460.02 for use in its work during the fiscal year ending March 31, an increase of $11,961.37 over the preceding year.

The figures were disclosed in the committee's annual report just completed for presentation to the general assembly of the church at its diamond jubilee anniversary meeting May 21-27 in Augusta, Ga.

A spending budget of $215,810.17 for this committee for the past year was approved by the general assembly at its meeting last year, but by judicious management, the report said, the executive committee kept its expenditures to $210,908.41.

The proposed budget of the committee for 1937-38 is $205,500.

The executive committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief combines under this title the old executive committee of education, formed by the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the Confederate States of America in 1861; the executive committee of ministerial relief, created in 1901, the executive committee of schools and colleges formed in 1906 and consolidated with the other committees in 1910.

The Rev. Henry H. Swets, D. D., retiring moderator of the church, executive secretary of the committee which has its headquarters in Louisville.

Two distinguished leaders of the northern Presbyterian church will address the diamond jubilee anniversary meeting of the general assembly.

They are Dr. Joseph A. Vance, of Detroit, and Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York.

Dr. Vance is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Detroit, president of the National Board of Missions of the Presbyterian church in the United States and author of a number of well-known books. He is a brother of Dr. James Isaac Vance, a former moderator of the church and at many international conferences.

Dr. Speer, a former moderator of the church in the United States and ex-president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, will speak on Monday, May 25, during a program entitled "Seventy-five Years of Work Abroad."

Accused Husband Charges Friend
In 'Snake Death' of Young Wife

Five-Time Married Barber Also Alleges That Black Widow Spiders Proposed as Means of Slaying Before Mate Was Killed.

LOS ANGELES, May 3.—(AP)—District Attorney Buron Fitts announced today that Robert S. James, accused of torturing his fifth wife with rattlesnakes and drowning her, hurled the same charges back at his accuser, Charles Hope.

Last night, the prosecutor said, James confessed he drowned 25-year-old Mary Busch James and left her body in a fish pond to simulate an accident, but denied the charge he forced her foot into a box of venomous snakes in an effort to kill her with their poison.

In a new statement today, Fitts said, the often-married barber named Hope, a 37-year-old cafe worker and ex-sailor, as the actual killer, and charged Hope proposed black widow spiders as the instrument of death before the snake episode and the eventual drowning.

"All you have to do is throw them in bed with her," the latest James statement quoted Hope saying after he brought a box of the poisonous insects to the James home.

Mrs. James was found, face down, in the fish pond of her La Crescenta home. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning, with a possibility admitted that a sting of some kind on the woman's leg might have been a contributory cause of death.

James' statement, taken today after Hope had repeated his charges that James drowned his wife in the bathtub after forcing her bare foot into a box filled with snakes, encompassed two other "death plots" for which the barber charged Hope was responsible.

"My wife was sick at this time," James' statement said. "Hope talked to me and he said: 'She's going to die anyway, why don't you kill her?'"

"I told him I couldn't do it. He said, 'Let me do it.' I said, 'How would you do it?'"

"Well," he said, "I'll take her up here and I'll shoot her in a houp."

"I said: 'Yes, there have been a lot of people hung for that.'"

Hope's second suggestion, the barber charged, involved "some kind of white powder in a box."

To Hope's story that James had strapped his wife, gagged, to the table for the "snake torture," James countered that Hope had represented himself to Mrs. James as a medical student, that he persuaded her to lie on the table and be strapped while he performed an illegal operation on her.

James said he left the house at this time, returning later to find Hope drunk and Mrs. James in bed.

"Hope said he put her foot in the box with one snake and it bit her three times," James' statement continued. "He said to me, 'I don't know what the matter with her, unless she has bitten on too many things he's not poison. It doesn't have any effect on her at all.'"

James said then he suggested "calling it off," but Hope objected that they had "gone too far."

He said, told him to go to work and that he would "take care of her," James said Hope had promised to burn down the house.

Instead, James declared, Hope told him, he had drowned Mrs. James in the bathtub.

"You fool, that's the worst thing you could have done," James said to Hope. "I had a wife drown in a bathtub in Colorado a little while ago."

James' third wife, Winona Wallace James, drowned in a bathtub in a tourist cottage at Manitou, Col., in October, 1932.

James charged the plot to kill Mrs. James was conceived by both Hope and himself to collect on her double indemnity insurance policy, and that Hope was to receive half the insurance money.

Hope, in James' presence, denied the barber's story.

"I was never alone with her at any time," he said.

Later in the day James and Hope were taken to a Long Beach snake pit where Mike Allman, proprietor, identified them as men who had purchased a snake from him.

CIVILIZATION IS SICK.

ST. LOUIS, May 3.—(AP)—The idea that civilization is a little sick and might be helped by starting a mental consultation service for statesmen to use to develop clearer insight into the underlying springs of mass thought was proposed to the American Psychiatric Association today on the eve of its 82nd annual meeting.

AAA RATES APPROVED.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—Approval of rates of payment and soil building practices for farmers in the east central region was announced today by the AAA.

The AAA said the practices approved by the board of conservation program followed recommendations of state committees and land grant colleges, and the payments ranged from $1 to $5 an acre.

CONVENT IS BURNED.

MADRID, May 3.—(AP)—Extremists burned the Los Angeles convent church tonight, accusing nuns of distributing poisoned candy to girls sheltered there. Socialist youths had to rescue the girls from the flames. Before the fire seven were injured in a clash in front of the church.

THREE HELD IN SLAYING.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., May 3.—(AP)—Three men were arrested here today and charged with the killing and robbery of Roy Rhyne, operator of a filling station a mile west of Rockingham. The men were booked as A. K. Puckett, Red Puckett, of Sanford; R. L. Swain, of Fayetteville, and F. M. Cox, of Winston-Salem.

JAMES E. SMITH DIES.

ST. LOUIS, May 3.—(AP)—James Ellwood Smith, pioneer champion of inland waterway transportation, one of the founders and president emeritus of the Mississippi Valley Association, died here today of heart disease. He was 85.

PARLIAMENT OPENED.

TOKYO, May 4.—(Monday)—(UP)—Emperor Hirohito formally opened parliament today with the reading of an imperial rescript. The emperor left the imperial palace, accompanied by the royal bodyguard, at 10:30 a. m. and arrived at parliament shortly before 11. He read the rescript immediately and returned to the palace.

DEVALUATION IS SEEN.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Wall Street banking circles, analyzing the "leftist" victory indicated by early French elections returns tonight, said the chances of devaluation of the franc had increased somewhat.

BALKAN CONFERENCE.

BEGRAD, Yugoslavia, May 3.—(AP)—Hopes for preservation of European peace took an upward turn in this area today as Balkan premiers and foreign ministers gathered here in a compromising mood for a Balkan entente conference.

SOUNDNESS NEEDED.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 3.—(UP)—A sound monetary policy and a balanced budget are needed to bring the United States out of the depression, the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle will say tomorrow in reporting the results of an economic survey among thousands of Americans.

COOL, CLOUDY WEATHER EXPECTED HERE TODAY

Slightly cooler and partly cloudy weather is in store for Atlanta today, according to the forecast issued last night by meteorologists at the Chandler field station of the United States weather bureau. No rain is expected, however.

The mercury after a scheduled start at 55 degrees early this morning is expected to climb during the day to a maximum in the vicinity of 75 degrees this afternoon. Yesterday's temperature extremes were between 62 and 81 degrees.

WILLIAM A. PRIME, 72, IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—William A. Prime, 72, marine insurance pioneer and a doctor, singer, amateur steelchaser and yachtsman, died Saturday at his Fifth Avenue home of angina pectoris and pneumonia.

Prime's varied career began as a doctor but he soon gave it up to tour America with the Bostonians, a light opera company. He managed to sing once in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York—it was a charity performance.

An uncle persuaded him to enter the insurance world where he rose to prominence.

A native of New York, he owned and raced such well-known horses as Black Tony, Silver Dart and Penant, sire of Equipoise.

POLICEMEN RECOVER AUTO IN TEN MINUTES

Two Atlanta radio policemen last night showed just how quickly a stolen car can be recovered. Receiving a radio call at 8:10 o'clock that a car had been stolen from Peachtree street between Cain and Harris, they found the car in a parking lot at 63 Harris street and arrested a suspect at 8:20 o'clock—time, 10 minutes.

The stolen car belonged to M. E. Bishop, of 45 Krog street, who had parked it on Peachtree street while attending a theater. The suspect, found lying in the front seat of the car in the parking lot, according to the officer, gave his name as Eugene Sargent, 17, of a Dekker street address. The patrolmen said they found two pairs of pliers and a screwdriver on the boy. He was locked up on suspicion of stealing an automobile.

U. S. MOTHER OF 1936 TO FLY TO GOTHAM

CLAREMONT, Cal., May 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Eleanor Smith, modest blue-eyed housewife, prepared today to leave Tuesday by airplane for New York city, where on Mother's Day she will be hailed as "The American Mother of 1936."

"It's really a tribute to motherhood, and not to me as a person," she said of her selection by the Golden Rule Foundation's Mother's Day committee.

Mrs. Smith, mother of four sons and two daughters, was born in Virginia and came to California at the age of 17. Her husband is James R. Smith, an orange grower.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD CHILD DROWNS IN RESERVOIR

TARROIR, N. C., May 3.—(AP)—Milton Cranford and Dickey Gillette, both five years old, attempted to fish in a reservoir yesterday but Cranford fell in and drowned.

Gillette said nothing about it until firemen gave him a quarter today. Then they recovered the body by pumping the water from the reservoir.

Gillette told firemen he ran when his companion fell.

The reservoir is used by a textile plant in case of fire.

TENNESSEE PROGRAM

Education Association of Tennessee Reveals Its Attitude.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 3.—(AP)—Two of the three candidates for the democratic nomination for governor, W. A. Bass, executive secretary of the Tennessee Education Association, said tonight, have pledged their support to the organization's eight-point legislative program.

Bass said he had received favorable replies from Gordon Browning, of Huntingdon, and C. W. Wright, of Oneida, in response to the TEA's questionnaire asking the candidates where they stood on the educational program.

The third candidate for the democratic nomination is Burgin Dossett, of Jackboro. Bass declared Dossett was to make known his stand upon the question within the near future, explaining that the delay in his reply might be attributed to the candidate's recent travels over the state.

Browning said he was "in full accord with the program and hope I may be of service in carrying out the objectives."

"I have already stated over the state," Wright replied, "that I was wholeheartedly for its (the eight-point) program adoption. I feel that this program is far-reaching and one which will do much for the betterment and uplifting of our school system."

The TEA's legislative program includes a minimum $60 a month salary for teachers, a minimum elementary school term of eight months and a nine-month term for high schools, a sound retirement system for teachers and a library service for all state schools.

LARGEST LIFT SPAN INSTALLED IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—The largest lift span ever installed on a bridge was floated across the Harlem river today under the eyes of city officials, government engineers and curious thousands of spectators.

The span, 310 feet long and 93 feet wide, was floated across the Harlem river to its position as a unit of the Tri-Borough bridge which will connect the boroughs of Manhattan, Queens and the Bronx.

Cables were attached at high tide and as the subiding water tightened them and let the span swing free from its supporting barges the hoisting to position 55 feet above the river began.

From this normal position it can be lifted to a height of 135 feet above the surface to permit shipping to pass under.

Georgia Elk Meeting
Addressed by Sholtz

Delegates at Columbus Will Visit Fort Benning Today.

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 3.—(AP)—Governor Dave Sholtz, of Florida, was the principal speaker at the opening session of the Georgia Elk's Association convention here today, emphasizing service to others as the predominant feature of Elkdom.

The chief executive told how Elk lodges over the country are active in charitable work and called upon the delegates to the state meeting to do even more for their fellowmen.

All indications point to the attendance at the convention being even larger than that of the meetings held here last year.

Walter E. Lee, of Waycross, president of the association, presided at the initial session and A. L. Kunze, of the Columbus lodge, welcomed the delegates to this city. Judge John S. McClelland, of Atlanta, responded and introduced Governor Sholtz. W. E.

Crute, of Macon, gave the invocation. The opening session preceded a number of social events in honor of the delegates and their ladies. Tomorrow the second business session will be held and the delegates will visit Fort Benning. The grand ball will be held tomorrow night.

CHARLES A. L. KING, 69, DIES IN PORTLAND, ME.

PORTLAND, Maine, May 3.—(AP)—Charles A. L. King, 69, engineer, died today.

He had worked in Brazil, Panama, and in many states in this country, and served with United States Light House Service and the Geological Survey.

King was a native of Lewiston.

GEORGIAN'S DAUGHTER IS KILLED BY CRASH

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., May 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Larue Ford Howell, 32, died in a hospital here today of injuries suffered in a highway accident April 21.

The automobile in which she was riding had collided with a truck. She came here more than a year ago from Goodwater, Ala.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Libbie Ford, of Columbus, Ga., and might be unacceptable to the new government, particularly a leftist cabinet.

Voting today appeared to be heavy. Warm weather prevailed but participation was less animated than a week ago, although posters warned voters against fascist or communist "perils" and were more violent than ever.

Official returns from the first ballot April 28 follow:

Rightists—Various republican parties, 58.

Center Parties—Left republicans, 25; popular democrats, 8; independent radicals, 20.

Leftists—Radical socialists, 22; independent socialists, 3; socialist union, 5; orthodox socialists, 23; communists, 9.

Independents—12.

from the west, failed as ruler of Ethiopia because he was too good for his country.

He has no European education like the young men he has yearly sent abroad to absorb the latest in modern technique. His entire education came from an old French priest in Harar.

He was balked everywhere. When he tried to educate technicians abroad he was forced to do so out of his own pocket, because priests and advisors blocked spending public money on "foreign civilization."

When he brought the first airplane to Ethiopia during the reign of the Empress Zauditu, it was shipped back post-haste because the priests convinced the empress man was not made to fly and the plane must therefore be the devil's work.

When he tried to lay telephone lines the wires were stolen by natives to stick in their noses or ears as ornaments. Grafting ministers sold to their own advantage the rifles and machine guns which he attempted to lay in against the Italian invasion.

With the exception of a half dozen young progressives who were generally overworked and whose enthusiasm was offset by their ineptitude, no one in Ethiopia cared whether civilization progressed or not and at least 50 per cent of the powerful chiefs openly opposed it.

Haile Selassie knew war probably meant the end of him and his attempted progress. Even if he had held the Italians off and eventually gained peace, he was through as dictator. He had remained the supreme power, like all Ethiopian rulers, because he "had the big gun," in this case guns that would really shoot.

When war threatened he distributed them among his chiefs, many of them openly hostile to him and others sympathetic to the old dynasty which considered him a usurper. If peace had come, he would probably have faced revolt.

He was forced to refuse all concessions when peace efforts were made because to make them would have meant revolution in the north. Totally unfit for military command, he was forced by tradition to take the field when he would have been much more effective at Addis, organizing supply and directing both fronts from a central point.

He knew guerrilla warfare was Ethiopia's only chance—that through it he might make the war so expensive that Italy would be content with part, rather than all, of Ethiopia.

The chiefs stuck it out for four months in the north, went to him shouting "We beat them in 1896 and we can do it again," and proceeded to risk open battle in which they were wiped out.

Haile Selassie now would probably prefer to fight it out, perhaps to save part of the western half of his country still untouched by the Italians. With revolt to the west and Italians to north and south, he couldn't do it. He was beaten more by his countrymen than by the Italians.

SELASSIE CONSIDERED CONRAGEOUS, MODERN

By ALBERT W. WILSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer, Just Returned From Ethiopia.

The crossing of the frontier into French Somaliland by Emperor Haile Selassie I apparently has ended the reign of Ethiopia's most enlightened and powerful monarch.

The little emperor—barely over five feet tall—was conceded intelligence, gallantry and courage by foreigners who have been in close contact with him.

He did more in 20 years to modernize and develop the backward and impoverished empire created by his great uncle, Menelik II, than all the previous rulers of Ethiopia.

Haile Selassie has often been called the hardest-working man in Ethiopia. No subordinate would make a decision without his approval. His cabinet was a puppet one.

Selassie was regarded as a god by his subjects. He not only took the ancient title of "King of Kings,"

Sunday the imperial palace of Ethiopia, in Addis Ababa, the most imposing structure in the city, was thrown open to looters by royal decree. The building was stripped quickly of treasures beyond the wildest dreams of the natives.

of God, Lion of Judah and "Light of the World," a title even more significant as an indication of the awe in which he was held by his people was that of "Little Father."

He was also the real master of the powerful Coptic church. In contrast to the many Ethiopian rulers and emperors, he would not be dominated by the priests.

In private life, Haile Selassie preferred to live as a European. He joined rarely in the raw meat feasts of his chieftains. His experiences in Europe had given him different tastes and the imperial banquets were equal to the finest dinners of state in modern countries.

CAPITAL DELUGED

Inch of Rain Falls in Fifteen Minutes.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—A violent thunderstorm which deluged the capital with an inch of rain in 15 minutes set fire to an historic landmark, capsize pleasure craft and disrupted two broadcasting company programs today.

One bolt of lightning struck and set fire to the old postoffice building spire. Resorting to steepjack tactics, firemen fought the almost inaccessible blaze for two hours. Damage was slight.

Two other shafts of lightning ended abruptly radio broadcasts from WUC and WOL. A terrific downpour, meantime, flooded cellars and sewers, reduced traffic to a snail's pace and blew off manhole covers.

TO PUSH ADJOURNMENT.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—Charles West, who once taught political economy, emerged today as one of the key figures in the administration's drive for an early adjournment of congress. Smiling and swift-moving, the former Ohio representative is officially the Undersecretary of the Interior.

AMERICAN IS KILLED, NATIVE MOB FORMING

nelius Van H. Engert wireless the State Department at 5 p. m. Ethiopian time, that an Ethiopian child was shot down near the front gate of the American legation.

British Save Foreigners.

He also reported foreigners who had sought refuge there had been evacuated by British diplomatic officials at his request when he learned a mob was reported to be on the way to his legation.

His message reporting the successful evacuation of Greek, Russian, Armenian and British Somalians gave no further word about the native mob. Later he sent word he had requested the assistance of the British legation there in evacuating all the American legation personnel if the serious situation should render this necessary.

Mrs. Stadin was killed while she slept early today by a bullet which penetrated the galvanized iron roof of the Seventh Day, Adventist mission headquarters.

Subsequent reports from Engert mentioned no other American casualties, but pointed to the death of Mrs. Stadin as an illustration of the risk incurred by all foreigners while indiscriminate firing continued.

Capital Destroyed.

The American minister said fire and pillage virtually had completed the destruction of the Ethiopian capital and that firing by rioting natives had continued all night.

Today, he said, the ruins of the flame-swept business district still were smoldering although at that time (11 a. m. Addis Ababa time), he reported "things seem on the whole a little quieter."

Later messages said reliable information put the Italian vanguard only about 10 or 12 miles from the city and it presumably would enter the capital tomorrow.

There was no evidence of Ethiopian resistance to the Italians.

Reporting everyone in the American Sudan interior mission was safe, Engert informed the State Department of an unconfirmed rumor a British Red Cross doctor—Dr. Melly—had been shot through the chest while driving through the streets. This report said, however, that he was expected to recover.

Communication Cut.

Engert said he had been unable to communicate with the American mission located near the legation but that he did not believe its occupants were in danger.

The American legation is situated approximately three miles across the city from the legation quarter where most of the other diplomatic missions are located.

Its only protection is six native Ethiopian guards. The British legation is guarded by 250 British-Indian troops belonging to a crack Indian regiment commanded by white officers.

The first Engert message said: "Dr. Melly, of the British Red Cross, is reported to have been shot through the chest while driving through the streets but is expected to recover. This report is not confirmed."

His second message, timed at 4 p. m., said:

Second Message.

"There is reliable information to the effect that the Italian vanguard is now only about 10 or 12 miles from the city and will presumably enter tomorrow. There is no evidence of Ethiopian resistance."

At 5 p. m. he radioed:

"My messenger has just returned from the Sudan interior mission Ar Furi and reports everybody well and safe. There seems to have been a little anxiety for a while but nothing serious happened."

"Although messenger was unable to get through to American mission Gullali because of heavy firing I believe I would have heard if they were in trouble as the mission is comparatively near the legation."

"However, the fact that he could not get through and that just then an Abyssinian child was shot down near our front gate and a mob was reported to be approaching made it seem wise to send message to British legation to send trucks (to the American legation) at least for the evacuation of Greeks and Russians, four Armenian girls, and some 15 British Somalians who had joined the Greeks and Russians (at the American legation) since yesterday. This was done and I believe they reached the British legation safely."

British and Turks.

Engert advised he had asked for British assistance if evacuation of the legation became necessary in a message sent at 7 p. m. Addis Ababa time. In that report he said concerning reports of the wounding of a British Red Cross doctor:

"I also heard that the Turkish legation, which lies en route to the so-called legation quarter, was in serious danger of being attacked about 5 p. m. and that a squad from the British legation guard had considerable difficulty in extricating the (Turkish) legation personnel and Turkish nationalists and only succeeded after killing several Abyssinians."

"Taken together with the general development during the day, these events induce me to communicate once more with the British legation to request several trucks be sent to Evacuate if necessary our entire legation.

Held the Legation.

Engert in his 11 p. m. dispatch notified the department he expected to hold the legation against anything short of a mob attack, asserting he and his staff possessed nine rifles, two shotguns, a number of pistols and a fair amount of ammunition.

These persons were removed from the American to the British legation: Misses B. A. Dommermuth, E. C. French and R. M. Shipley, all of Avon, Pa., members of the staff of the American Mary Hasties school, who earlier had taken refuge in the American legation. They took with them an adopted child, Minister Engert's two children and their governess; a male clerk named Fidele, a British subject, with his wife and two children; the family of the legation's Amharic scribe, Ato Tolhane, and an American negro named Weeks.

The minister said he consented to Mrs. Engert's request she be allowed to remain in the legation so she might encourage native servants whose families live within the American compound.

Praises Courage.

He added:

"With Vice Consul William M. Cramp (Philadelphia) and Vice Consul Robert L. Hunter (Milbank, S. D.) and the four navy radio men, all of whom have shown admirable courage and coolness, I expect to be able to hold the legation against anything but a mob attack from different directions."

The minister reported in addition to the legation staff were six other foreigners including three Americans, assisting him. They are a Mr. Spencer, American financial advisor to the Ethiopian government; Ben Ames, a press correspondent; Hal Dubarier, an American aviator; a white Russian named Hartman; a Greek representative of a news agency, named Angelo Poulos; and an unidentified Czechoslovakian in the minister's employ.

Nine Rifles.

"Among us," Engert said, "we have nine rifles, two shotguns, and ten revolvers, with a fair amount of ammunition. I feel very strongly and my companions agree with me that we should not abandon the legation and radio station without effort to hold them. I feel very strongly and my companions agree with me that we should not abandon the legation and radio station without effort to hold them."

"Should the situation become much worse, which I do not anticipate, the department may depend on my withdrawing before it is too late. The British have left us a truck for that purpose."

"Several fresh fires have started in town but the legation is not threatened by them. Shooting has been less intense during the last hour or so."

The minister ended his message with the words "shall report again in the morning."

bled outside the governor's palace and many natives openly went when Haile Selassie appeared. Others cheered.

Accompanying the emperor were Ras Kassa, Ras Desta, Foreign Minister Herouy and Dedjasmach Emeu, and 30 high court dignitaries. The British destroyer arrived this morning from Aden.

The imperial family was served luncheon at the governor's palace in strict seclusion and only the highest French officials were permitted to the dining room.

French officials said the family would transfer from the destroyer to a liner at Aden and go on to England. All members of the government are expected to accompany the family. The imperial train carried several tons of baggage.

BRITAIN, FRANCE CONSULT ON HAILE'S FUTURE

LONDON, May 3.—(AP)—The British and French governments consulted today over the future of Emperor Haile Selassie. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden arrived at the foreign office this afternoon. He was still there four hours later after Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin arrived at No. 10 Downing Street.

Official quarters stated the destroyer Diana, which the emperor was boarded at Djibouti, was sent because of unsatisfactory communication with the British consulate there.

The emperor's future plans, authoritative sources pointed out, will be decided by his own wishes and partly on the wishes of the French government.

The British government has received no information the emperor had abdicated, but it was understood he had turned over the government to ministers.

Speaking at Leamington last night, Eden said "Whatever the lessons of the last seven months, we must be prepared to learn from them and profit by them in a spirit of realism."

FRENCH HARBORING LIKELY SUCCESSOR

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, May 3.—(AP)—Shortly before Emperor Haile Selassie arrived from Addis Ababa today, the governor-general of French Somaliland paid a visit to Prince Menelik, a grandson of the late Daj Yashu, who was removed from the throne by Haile Selassie and imprisoned.

Menelik, who is a great-great-grandson of Emperor Menelik II, is considered an outstanding candidate for the throne of Ethiopia if the Italians seek a man to replace the "Conquering Lion of Judah." He has a villa at Tajura, a few miles from here.

SOUTH'S CONSTRUCTION SHOWS 117 PCT. GAIN

Awards Aggregating $78,210,000 in April Represent Five-Year High.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 3.—(AP)—Building, construction and engineering contract awards in 16 southern states totaled $311,405,000 during the first four months of 1936, a gain of 117 per cent over a similar period last year and the greatest in the past 10 years, the Manufacturers' Record said today.

Awards aggregating $78,210,000 in April represent a five-year high, the magazine said. "With building work increasing in volume, every line of business will begin to feel the effects of the new flow of money which the purchase of construction materials and equipment and the employment of construction craftsmen develop."

"In the resumption of construction activity, the south, as in 1921, is pointing the way," the Manufacturers' Record said. "With building work increasing in volume, every line of business will begin to feel the effects of the new flow of money which the purchase of construction materials and equipment and the employment of construction craftsmen develop."

Investment Faith.

"No greater demonstration of faith in the states from Maryland to Texas and in the future of the south can be found than the investment being made by nationally-known institutions and local interests in new and expanding building and industrial enterprises."

The magazine said the outstanding development in the construction industry in the south last month was "the remarkable increase in dwelling, apartment house and hotel construction."

Awards for dwellings, including a number of major housing projects financed with federal aid, ran to $5,455,000, which the magazine said was an all-time high monthly total for this class of construction. These awards brought the January to April figure to $8,579,000.

Other Gains Shown.

Apartment house and hotel construction contracts in April were $4,072,000, just short of the awards of $4,507,000 for such operations in the first three months of the year. The total for the four months for residential construction exceeded $11,765,000.

The textile industry is again in the spotlight, the magazine reported. Last month contracts were let for extensions and the installation of new machinery at a woolen mill near Rossville, Ga., estimated to cost $400,000.

At Athens, Ga., a hosiery mill began work on an expansion program calling for an outlay of $400,000. Improvements started at a Lincoln, N. C., mill are to cost $100,000.

GIRL, 16, IMPROVES WITH CAP IN LUNG

Third Operation To Remove Object Planned This Week.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 3.—(AP)—Sixteen-year-old Pauline Lane, who has been in a hospital here 10 days with an inch-long cigaret lighter top tightly lodged in her left lung, was reported slowly improving today.

Her physician said a third operation for removal of the metal slug probably will be attempted this week, although no definite day has been set yet.

Swelling and inflammation in the girl's lung, he said, is clearing slowly. The object slid down Pauline's windpipe April 24 when she laughed while holding it between her teeth. Specialists were unable to remove the lighter cap with instruments available here.

Oversized forceps were manufactured in Philadelphia and sent here but physicians were unable to grasp the bevel-edged piece of metal with the instrument.

Pauline was in a serious condition for several days following the second unsuccessful operation with physicians fearing pneumonia or infection would develop to menace her life.

Foundations of God Unremoved, Foreign Missions Leader States

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.
Pastor Druid Hills Baptist Church.
The eternal foundations of God stand unremoved by change and circumstance of shifting political, economic and social superstructures of man's making," declared Dr. Robert E. Speer, for the past 44 years secretary of the foreign mission board of the Presbyterian Church, United States of America, in the first of his seven sermons at the Druid Hills Baptist church, beginning yesterday and continuing through Tuesday night.

Basing his first sermon on the third verse of the Eleventh Psalm, "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?" Dr. Speer held the vast throng of people who crowded the spacious church office in rapt attention as he moved quickly into his discourse, acknowledging the apparent collapse of many so-called foundations in the world today.

Government Changes.
"We look almost in vain to find a single government in the world today that has not passed through drastic changes within the past century. There is not one government to be found on the face of the earth today whose economic structure has not been changed within the past 25 years. Moral and social foundations have seemed to sway before an on-rushing tide of upheaval which has swept through the earth in these post-war years," said Dr. Speer.

"Change and decay in all around we see, and well may we sing with a poet of old, 'O Thou who changeest not, abide with me.' And yet ours is not the only day that has witnessed such change, nor are we faced with the most violent forms of change when one takes the long look of a historian. Look at the Roman empire, called by many the 'Eternal City of the Seven Hills.' Not only did that seemingly secure empire topple, but in its crash the centuries seem still to vibrate. Well did Mr. G. K. Chesterton describe the fall of Rome in his graphic lines depicting Caesar falling from the sky and nations plunged in furious death. Nor does one forget the mad days of the 18th century in the English-speaking world when men decreed that God was not to be reckoned with and sought by their little schemes to ignore Him in all their plans and purposes. And even in our own young nation there are those of us alive who well remember the taunts of garrulous men a half century ago who predicted that God was a myth and the Bible a fable.

"O where are kings and empires now Of old that went and came? But, Lord, Thy church is praying yet, A thousand years the same."

Things for Righteous.
"In the stressful circumstances which fell with devastating power upon the good, great King David of old, his son in open rebellion and his kingdom tottering beneath his feet, David cried out, 'If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?' and I would suggest three things that the righteous can always do amid the change and chance of a troubled world.

"First, we can remember that this is not the first, nor is it the worst, revolution of the world. One has only to take an unprejudiced look at history to be fully assured that ours is not really the worst day in the history of the world. Since sin entered human hearts in the Garden of Eden, man has been struggling beneath its weight of woe and misery and death. Dark clouds have engulfed the world in many eras of its upward climb, but back of the clouds the sun was shining and through the storm and above the tumult was seen the Light of hope for trusting hearts. No, I would not admit that ours is the first nor yet the worst of the upheavals of society, fearful as are the implications of our day and generation.

"Second, we can go on being righteous, even though the foundations seem to shift beneath our feet. There is nothing that can stop a trusting child of God. The very hour of trial is often God's moment of disclosing His brightest promises of victory. Let the world denounce us for our simplicity of faith, let the smart set smirk at our allegiance to truth and to God, be it ours to go on quietly in unwavering faith in His goodness and mercy, and He will make bare His arm of defense and His unchanging purpose through the ages.

Will of God.
"Third, we can go on doing the will of God. He that doeth the will of God shall abide forever. History attests this fact. One has but to inquire at the citadel of human experience to have confirmation of the truth that when we cast ourselves in unremitting trust in the Lord, we shall have the desires of our heart. The historians declare it so to be. The poets sing of the triumphs of God's children. The devils themselves stand silent as the soldiers of the cross march on to certain victory.

"Let us, therefore, remember history, let us go in the way of quiet discipleship, and let us resolutely set ourselves to do the will of God, and the fears that bound us will flee like the fox before the rising sun and we shall no more ask the foolish question of the distressed old king of the long ago."

Dr. Speer spoke again yesterday afternoon on "The Influence of Jesus" and last night on "The Good News of the Son of God About God" to capacity congregations. He was heard last night at 10 o'clock in a nationwide radio address on "The Christian Outlook." Special musical features of the programs on Sunday were provided by the quartet choir of the Druid Hills Baptist church and the Bessie Tift College quartet under the direction of Miss Ruth Anita Powell, head of the department of voice at the college. Prominent religious leaders of the city, including Dr. B. D. Gray, Dr. John Sprole Lyons, Dr. O.

ATLANTANS PLEASSED BY VIRGIL FOX RECITAL

Young Organist Played at First Presbyterian Church; Honored at Reception.

Virgil Fox re-created the sensation made here last season in a concert at the First Presbyterian church Saturday night, playing to an unusually large audience. Fox, who celebrated his twenty-fourth birthday in Atlanta yesterday, is a true virtuoso of the organ. He converts the instrument from a heavy, ponderous instrument (which so many make of it), into an instrument as fleet and agile as the piano. His technique is amazing, and his pedal technique—well, you wouldn't believe it unless you heard for yourself. His performance of Middelstaedt's "Perpetuum Mobile" for pedals alone was one of the breath-taking numbers of the program. But technical agility is not the only feature of Mr. Fox's art. His sense of tonal balance and color combinations is just as valuable to his success. And his musicianship is of the highest order, imbuing all his interpretations with sincerity and authority.

One of the two compositions still in manuscript which he presented, "Lament," by Roy Perry, is an exquisite study in atmosphere. The other number, "Vespers," by E. Hemminger, did not measure up to the caliber of the rest of the program.

Following the recital Mr. and Mrs. Asa Candler Jr., assisted by Dr. and Mrs. Charles Sheldon Jr., honored Fox at a reception to which members of the Organists' Guild were invited. After the buffet supper Fox gave an informal recital on the Candler organ.

Friday night Fox gives a recital in Carnegie Hall in New York city. He will be the second organist ever to give a concert in this renowned musical center, the only other one being Pietro Yon.

—MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.
P. Gilbert and Dr. B. J. W. Graham, participated in the services yesterday. This morning at 11 o'clock Dr. Speer will continue his series of sermons, speaking on "The Good News of the Son of God About Man." Dr. Ryland Knight and Dr. W. A. Shelton, presidents of the Atlanta Evangelical Association and the Atlanta Christian Council, respectively, will sit on the platform this morning and have part in the service.

The Baptist ministers' conference will also attend, their regular meeting being shifted. At 12:15 o'clock this afternoon Dr. Robert E. Speer will be the honor guest at a luncheon at the Druid Hills Baptist church to which the ministers of all denominations in the city are invited. Tonight at 8 o'clock Dr. Speer will speak on "The Good News of the Son of God About Society."

"Man Can Look to Religion for Happiness"

THE REV. W. R. SISSON.

Happiness in Religion Is Privilege Accorded Man Today, Sisson Says

(Editor's Note.—This is the 66th in a series of articles dealing with Atlanta pastors and their services. Additional articles will appear on succeeding Mondays.)

Present-day Christians are fortunate in that they live at a time when mankind may look to religion for happiness, said the Rev. W. R. Sisson, pastor of the Nellie Dodd Memorial Methodist church, in his sermon yesterday morning.

Such has not always been the case, he declared, citing that in the past the concept of religion had often been to deny oneself the joys of living. He said in part: "We of the present generation are fortunate to live in a day when men dare to look to their religion for happiness. This has not always been the case. Many have thought that to be religious was to deny oneself all the joys of living. Such a thought is clearly in opposition to the teachings of Jesus. The mathematical formula of Christian living is based on addition rather than subtraction. Jesus came that we might have life and have it more abundantly.

Modern Scholarship.
"Many of the present-day New Testament scholars contend that the first word in the Sermon on the Mount is the word 'happy' rather than the word 'blessed.' If we should trust this bit of modern scholarship, and I feel sure that we could, and apply it to the first verses of this well-known discourse of Jesus, we would get the following pleasing result. 'Happy are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.' 'Happy are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.' 'Happy are the meek... ' 'Happy are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness...' 'Happy are the merciful...' 'Happy are the

"Of course, Jesus makes a long list of the smaller streams that constantly feed this inner source of happiness. He mentions the gentle spirit, the pure heart, the one who is not thinking of himself more highly than we ought to think. I am sure that I have never seen a concited person who was not a little bit happy. Such persons are forever nursing a feeling that they are not sufficiently appreciated by the society in which they happen to live. So Jesus says: 'Happy are the poor in spirit. Happy are those of a humble and gentle nature.'"

"Happy are they that mourn." I have a profound suspicion that a man who has no capacity for grief, no ability to sympathize with a grief-stricken friend would never be very happy. Happy is that person who loves so deeply that a few honest tears automatically fall if the proper occasion arises.

"You see at once the soundness of such a system. When people are hungry and thirsty for righteousness, when they show mercy and kindness to all others, when they are pure in heart and mind, when they live peaceably as far as possible with all men and are able to suffer a certain amount of persecution at the hands of those who are facing the wrong way in life, they are on the way to happiness and joyous living. Let us remember that happiness does not come as a reward for all these qualities of character but rather as a finished product of these virtues. Happiness is a natural product of the pure heart, the peaceful mind and the firm Christian character."

Blind Alleys.
"It is a well-known fact that one's self-respect and the confidence of one's friends are too great a price to pay for worldly success. Yet, we do not seem to realize that. We have made up for ourselves a set of beatitudes that would read like this: Happy is the man with the big business income, regardless of how many men and women work in his shops for less than a living wage. Happy is he who walks rough-shod over the broken bodies of his fellow workers to achieve political power for his shall be the glories of public office. It is sure that most of us would deny having any such theories in our thinking, but nevertheless, the way we spend the most of our time proves their universal popularity. Some of us spend every moment of our conscious hours striving for something that if attained, would not bring the happiness that we so much desire. Many of the paths along which we struggle lead eventually into blind alleys. Jesus Christ alone can give the proper direction to our lives. He said, 'I am the way, the truth and the life.'"

"We cannot all be rich. We cannot all be famous. A great many people will never be able to reach the goal in life which they have set for themselves. We may fall far short of our ideals. But there is a way to live happily even in the face of material failure. Circumstances do alter cases but not real happiness. A person is rich, even though he may have lost his material advantage, if he has been able to retain his self-respect and the good will of his business associates."

pure in heart, and so on. It seems to me that this translation is nearer to the meaning Jesus was seeking to convey to His hearers.

"He had before Him a cross-section of human life. All levels of the current human society were represented there. Those who heard Him came from all possible areas of human culture. They were there from the nearby homes of the rich, and from the shop, and fields of the surrounding country. Some were good—some were bad, but as Jesus looked into their faces He saw one common desire and realized that this desire dominated the life of everyone before Him. They wanted to be happy. They were possessed of a longing for the better things of life. This touched the heart of Jesus. And when His disciples had come unto Him, He opened His mouth and taught them, saying: Happy are the poor in spirit, etc. He had the greatest respect for human need. He knew what the people wanted and needed and He was anxious for them to have it. But the tragedy of it all was that they were looking in the wrong places for happiness. The wealthy people had sought happiness in riches, luxury and power but had sought in vain. The poor people had spent countless hours longing for a share of the material wealth of the community and had never been able to attain it. Their scale of value was in great need of adjustment. In the face of these circumstances Jesus set himself to the task of giving the proper direction to their efforts.

Seek Happiness.
"Surely human nature has not changed since Jesus spoke these words of wisdom. Men still seek happiness. Perhaps not with conscious effort, but we at least expect those things which we do strive for to bring us happiness. It is life that we want. A life filled with the better things. But we need to have someone tell us how to get it, someone who really knows."

"Jesus had a great deal to say on this particular occasion, but it seems to me that He laid down one main proposition, which was this: Happiness has its source in character rather than in circumstances. To state it simply, it is not the things of this world that really matter, but the kind of man or woman that lives in your house. Some of the happiest people that I have known are not those who have the greatest material wealth and in some cases quite the opposite is true. Of course, I do not mean to say that the lack of material wealth brings happiness. Such a thing is neither stated nor implied, so far as I know, in the teachings of Jesus. He does teach, however, that if a man or woman is not content with one's material surroundings, as from a certain inner quality of character which may or may not be linked up with material wealth."

Gentle Spirit.
"Of course, Jesus makes a long list of the smaller streams that constantly feed this inner source of happiness. He mentions the gentle spirit, the pure heart, the one who is not thinking of himself more highly than we ought to think. I am sure that I have never seen a concited person who was not a little bit happy. Such persons are forever nursing a feeling that they are not sufficiently appreciated by the society in which they happen to live. So Jesus says: 'Happy are the poor in spirit. Happy are those of a humble and gentle nature.'"

"Happy are they that mourn." I have a profound suspicion that a man who has no capacity for grief, no ability to sympathize with a grief-stricken friend would never be very happy. Happy is that person who loves so deeply that a few honest tears automatically fall if the proper occasion arises.

"You see at once the soundness of such a system. When people are hungry and thirsty for righteousness, when they show mercy and kindness to all others, when they are pure in heart and mind, when they live peaceably as far as possible with all men and are able to suffer a certain amount of persecution at the hands of those who are facing the wrong way in life, they are on the way to happiness and joyous living. Let us remember that happiness does not come as a reward for all these qualities of character but rather as a finished product of these virtues. Happiness is a natural product of the pure heart, the peaceful mind and the firm Christian character."

Blind Alleys.
"It is a well-known fact that one's self-respect and the confidence of one's friends are too great a price to pay for worldly success. Yet, we do not seem to realize that. We have made up for ourselves a set of beatitudes that would read like this: Happy is the man with the big business income, regardless of how many men and women work in his shops for less than a living wage. Happy is he who walks rough-shod over the broken bodies of his fellow workers to achieve political power for his shall be the glories of public office. It is sure that most of us would deny having any such theories in our thinking, but nevertheless, the way we spend the most of our time proves their universal popularity. Some of us spend every moment of our conscious hours striving for something that if attained, would not bring the happiness that we so much desire. Many of the paths along which we struggle lead eventually into blind alleys. Jesus Christ alone can give the proper direction to our lives. He said, 'I am the way, the truth and the life.'"

"We cannot all be rich. We cannot all be famous. A great many people will never be able to reach the goal in life which they have set for themselves. We may fall far short of our ideals. But there is a way to live happily even in the face of material failure. Circumstances do alter cases but not real happiness. A person is rich, even though he may have lost his material advantage, if he has been able to retain his self-respect and the good will of his business associates."

'Uncle Sam's' Mule Hurt; Custodian Is Perturbed

DeKalb county police were investigating an automobile-mule accident on Oconee road yesterday morning. Arriving on the scene they found the animal critically injured in a ditch. Also in the ditch was James Macoon, negro, uninjured but badly shaken.

"Is that your mule?" the officers wanted to know.

"Now shush, he's a gov'ment mule," replied James. "But I've been working him. I live on one of Uncle Sam's farms. He ain't gonna like it about dis good mule being put out of service either."

Officers said the mule probably would have to be shot. No charge was made against Grover Starnes, Decatur, F. D. No. 1, driver of the car that struck the mule and overturned. Starnes also was uninjured.

THE WINNER! Kelly Petillo, at the wheel above, came first in the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway classic. Petillo says: "Camels hit the spot. People tell me that if they went through the strain, tension, and vibration that I go through in a race, they wouldn't enjoy eating for a week. I've found that smoking Camels—during and after meals—goes a long way in helping keep my digestion in good shape."

WOMAN'S WORK is never done, according to the old saying. Mrs. Frank Smith, photographed as she was marketing, is a typical modern homemaker. "Camels are a bright spot even on the most trying days," says Mrs. Smith. "A Camel when I'm tired gives me a 'lift' and smooths out my nerves too. Food tastes better—my digestion works smoothly when I smoke Camels." Women appreciate Camel's mildness.

ALL ABOARD! Away from home—different food—irregular hours—a business man meets many conditions that upset the normal routine of digestion. Camels stimulate digestion no matter where you are. That's one reason so many Camel smokers say: "Camels set you right!" Smoke them for digestion's sake. It's a pleasure you can enjoy often. For Camels never tire your taste or jangle your nerves.

THE FLARE of the welding arc climbs to a temperature of 8700° Fahrenheit! Dan Rafferty, master welder, guides the torch. Here's a job where good digestion counts. "A man has to have a steady hand and a steady eye for regular work," says Dan. "Smoking Camels during and after meals helps my digestion. Camels taste mild and rich." Turn to Camels—for their matchless flavor and for digestion's sake.

PROBING THE SECRETS of the deep is Henry Siemer's job (above). "Me and food get along swell together," this master diver says. "Camels make food taste better and digest better."

Smoking Camels a Pleasant Way to Encourage Good Digestion, Good Feeling, and Increase Alkalinity

Modern days are trying. So much to do. So little time. Nerves get "wound up." Digestion slows down. Hurry, worry, and strain tend to interfere with normal processes of digestion.

It is a scientific fact that smoking Camels has an alkalizing effect, through increasing the flow of the alkaline digestive fluids, helping to keep digestion on its proper course. You sense a comforting "lift" and feeling of well-being as you enjoy the delicate flavor of your Camel.

You can smoke Camels steadily. With their matchless blend of costlier tobaccos, Camels never get on your nerves or tire your taste.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS...Turkish and Domestic...than any other popular brand.

MODERN LADY GODIVA USES PLANE, NOT HORSE

Dancer Arrives in Newark
Clothed in Blonde Tresses, Little Else.

NEWARK, N. J., May 3.—(AP)—Renee Villon, who says she wants to be a "modern Lady Godiva," arrived in Newark tonight clothed in her long blonde tresses and little else, but she rode a plane instead of a horse. Eight passengers had stepped from the Miami plane when Miss Villon, who described herself as "a peace dancer" from Buffalo, N. Y., alighted. To all appearances she was about as free of clothing as the legendary lady she said she wanted to imitate. At least there were startled exclamations and a woman said very clearly, "Can you imagine."

Then a special policeman did some stripping. He removed his topcoat and gallantly wrapped it about the girl's bare shoulders. She said "There hasn't been a Lady Godiva since the 17th century. It's about time there was one and I am going to be the modern Lady Godiva."

It was raining, the policeman kept the coat about her despite her protests, and Renee hastily entered a taxi cab to take her to New York, where she promised to ride a white horse through Central Park tomorrow morning.

She indicated that she had entered the plane at Miami wrapped so snugly in a coat that one suspected it was her lone garment.

Another young lady wanted to fly to Newark minus her clothing several months ago but air line officials heard of the plan and issued stern orders against the stunt.

One of the characters in a novel by Henry Carey has a cute little name. It's Aldiborontephosphorhio.

AAA PLANS TO REVEAL SUBSIDY PAYMENTS

All Above $10,000 Will Be Made Public After a
'Reasonable Time.'

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—AAA officials today worked on plans for making public all soil conservation subsidy payments in excess of $10,000 a year within a "reasonable" time after the checks have been mailed.

Secretary Wallace was reported to have requested his assistants to devise a publicity plan which is expected to be a complete revision of the AAA's former policy regarding payments to farmers.

Until the senate adopted a resolution requesting Wallace to furnish a list of AAA payments of $10,000 or more a year, the AAA contended that names and specific amounts should not be made public. The secretary would have been subjected to undue annoyance had their names and their benefits being made available.

This rule had been followed strictly since 1933, and it was learned that at one time, the AAA denied a request of a White House secretary for information about a specific adjustment contract.

After controversy arose in the senate over large payments made by the AAA, Wallace said he believed that the amounts and names might well be made public "after a reasonable time." AAA clerks now are completing the list requested in the senate resolution.

No reason was assigned for the indicated change in policy, but an official said no payments would be made under the soil conservation program for several months.

An official said that payments to cotton and wheat farmers under the soil conservation program probably would be about the same as under the old adjustment programs which were outlawed by the supreme court. However, payments to other commercial crop producers are expected to be much less.

The greatest reduction is expected to be in payments to sugar producers, some of whom received as much as $1,000,000 from the old AAA. Records showed that 46 out of 1,031,549 cotton payments were in excess of $10,000 a year, while there were about 10 big wheat payments.

GAINESVILLE RESIDENT LOSES ARM IN CRASH

His left arm virtually snatched from his body when the automobile he was driving collided with a truck on the Lawrenceville road near Tucker yesterday morning, Ernest Bowdoin Gainesville youth, was in a serious condition at Emory University hospital this morning.

DeKalb county police reported that the accident occurred on a sharp curve and Roosevelt Dickens, negro, of Bailey, N. C., driver of the truck, was quoted as saying that young Bowen was driving in the center of the road. His arm was resting on the car door at the time of the crash and was torn off when the car was sidwiped by the truck.

J. W. Trickett, also of Bailey, N. C., owner of the truck, and Dickens, escaped injury. No charge was made against either.

Capital Presentations Praised for Excellence

An interesting film of newspaper life, "Woman Trap," is the screen feature which opened yesterday at the Capitol theater. In this picture is depicted the life of a reporter who is valuable to his editor because he is "in on the know" of criminal activities. He is also distasteful to the same editor because he consorts with criminals.

There are numerous exciting interludes which are climaxed when the reporter is given the assignment to cover the biggest crime of the year. How he achieves the biggest newspaper scoop of the year makes an intensely absorbing story.

The film stars George Murphy, Gertrude Michael and Roscoe Karns. An added film attraction is a special showing of the Dionne Quintuplets.

On the stage the Capitol offers "Cellophane Scandals," an unique presentation in which a galaxy of pretty girls appear clad in shimmering cellophane.

The stars of the cast include Billy Wade, comedian, the Earles; Peg Manning, blues singer; Jerry Lynn, acrobatic and toe tap dancer; the Margent Sisters, dancing team, and the Perry Farr girls. Two stage hands furnish the music for this week's entertainment.

"Cellophane Scandals" comes to the Capitol playing its 104th week on the road and the routine proceeds with the precision and smoothness of long practice. The bill is well balanced and genuinely entertaining. —E. L.

FOREIGN TRADE WEEK TO BE OBSERVED IN U. S.

Dr. Edminister Is Slated To Speak in Atlanta on May 18.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—Secretaries Hull and Roper and several other government officials will participate in the second national foreign trade week observance, May 17-23.

The observance is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Foreign Trade Council and other trade and civic organizations.

The Commerce Department announced today that Roper would address a meeting arranged by the Chamber of Commerce at Philadelphia May 18 and that Hull would speak at a luncheon of the Merchants' Association, the National Foreign Trade Association and other groups at New York (Hotel Astor) May 22.

Both cabinet officers will be guests of honor at a "good-will luncheon" here on May 19.

Other speeches scheduled by government officials:

May 18—Colonel J. Monroe Johnson, Propeller Club dinner, Norfolk, Va.; Chairman Robert L. O'Brien, of the tariff commission, Foreign Trade Association luncheon, San Francisco; Dr. N. H. Engle, assistant director, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Chamber of Commerce luncheon, Salem, Ore.; Dr. Lynn Ramsey, State Department, Foreign Trade luncheon, Atlanta.

May 19—Dr. Engle, Rotary Club, Seattle; Dr. W. E. Dunn, assistant director, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Foreign Trade Club dinner, Baltimore; Dr. Edminister, Chamber of Commerce luncheon, Birmingham, Ala.

CAMPAIGN FOR SAFETY MARSHALS PUBLIC AID

Response Brings Out Concerted Drive To Cut Georgia's Tragic Toll.

Marshalling the forces of practically every public-spirited organization in the city and state, the determined war against deaths and injuries from reckless driving and careless walking is gaining rapidly in response from thinking citizens who realize that recklessness is the greatest and deadliest pestilence which has ever struck the country.

When the Safety Council last year began its unceasing campaign against careless driving and unsafe driving practices, it was something of a venture in this state, without any assurance that it would receive the sanction of the public.

But before the campaign, whose object of safety is so vital to the life and happiness of the people, had been in operation a month, letters of hearty commendation were received from hundreds of people, from citizens in the remotest part of Georgia to the President of the United States.

Clubs, schools, and business and civic organizations took up the idea of pleading for safety on the streets and highways of the state and thousands of individuals sent letters to the Safety Council pledging full cooperation.

At present there are more than 125,000 safe drivers in Georgia and surrounding states who have signed the safe driving pledge of the Safety Council.

But assurance against careless driving will not be complete until you have given thought to the necessity of safety.

You are invited to clip out the pledge blank found in this issue, sign it and mail it to the Safety Council, Atlanta Constitution, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Place the safe driving stickers which will be sent you on the front and rear windows of your car.

They tell the world:

GEORGIA GETS $104,400 FOR POWER "CO-OPS"

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(UP)—Allotment of $1,400,100 for 1,374 miles of rural electric distribution lines to serve nearly 6,300 farms in 10 areas previously without electric service was announced yesterday by Rural Electrification Administrator Morris L. Cooke.

The North Georgia Electric Membership Corporation, a co-operative, may use up to $87,400 for 92 miles of line in Catocosa county, Georgia, using TVA power. The Toombs County Rural Electrification System Co-operative, of Lyons, Ga., received $3,000 to build 50 miles of line in Toombs and Emanuel counties.

STILESBO RO HOLDS 78TH ANNUAL REUNION

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., May 3.—(AP)—Historic Stilesboro village pledged its annual bond of fellowship yesterday when villagers held the 78th annual reunion at old Stilesboro Academy, erected in 1859.

The custom that started in 1857 was interrupted only once, in 1865, when the War Between the States ended only a few days before "May Day."

Mrs. T. S. Hawkins, 88-year-old member of the trio now living who attended the first civic picnic, was honored at the fête.

Oldsters recalled that General Sherman spared the academy, but said he used benches and desks of the school as feed troughs for his horses.

MRS. AYRES, 81, DIES AT STONE MOUNTAIN

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga., May 3. Services for Mrs. Rachel Paimy Ayres, 81, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred E. Veyblen, here Saturday night, will be held Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. Ayres, active in religious and civic activities here, was ill for only a few days.

The services will be conducted at the Stone Mountain Methodist church, with Rev. J. Foster Young officiating. Interment will follow in the family cemetery at Conyers.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Fred E. Veyblen and Mrs. Hugh Mullinax, of Stone Mountain.

No Destructive Acids Used on Panama Hats, Says Roselle

SUMMER STRAWS QUICKLY CLEANED

Forsyth Street Plant Adds to Staff, Equipment to Handle Volume

The definite arrival of spring weather and the impending sultry days in early prospect already have brought Panama hats flocking back into use, declares Tony F. Roselle Jr., proprietor of the Roselle, the Hatter, shop at 35 Forsyth street, N. W., in the ground floor of the Palmer building—with a resulting heavy demand for cleaning and reblocking.

Of the many, many thousands of straw hats and Panamas worn by Atlantans, an overwhelming number are finding their way to Roselle, the Hatter, for reconditioning. In addition, many more thousands are coming from cities and towns throughout the southeast, where this enterprising establishment maintains agencies to handle mail orders.

To meet this year's increasingly heavy demand for top-notch cleaning and blocking, especially in Panama hats, Mr. Roselle not only has increased his shop staff of factory-trained artisans, but has installed additional machinery to ease the capacity burden of work. This equipment, like much of the other machinery in the Roselle shop, has been evolved and patented by the nationally known Roselle, the Hatter, in Louisville, Ky., founded by the father of the Atlanta Roselle, and where the younger hat specialist obtained his training in the craft.

"It is of particular significance," says Mr. Roselle, "for the public to note that workmanship in our Forsyth street shop is done under the same high standard which always has been the rule in the Louisville factory. The same kind of equipment is used and the same processes are employed in our shop here, thus assuring our customers of the most modern workmanship in the cleaning, blocking, bleaching or renovation of Panamas, felts or straw hats."

Roselle, the Hatter, its proprietor points out, uses absolutely pure and odorless solvents which, while cleaning the material through and through, leave it absolutely unharmed, and the owner may be assured it will be returned to him or her in even better condition than when left.

Though the Roselle, the Hatter, shop was opened several years ago and still occupies its original quarters, Mr. Roselle states, it has enjoyed a tremendous growth. Though seemingly crowded, the shop is maintained along lines of the utmost efficiency and is capable of handling, both speedily and economically, an even greater volume.

Mr. Roselle invites discriminating Atlantans to bring their Panamas to him to be placed in condition for the hot months just ahead.

CAPITAL AUTO CO. REGISTERS GAINS

Interest Increasing in Oldsmobile, Cadillac and LaSalle, Says Smith.

Spring sales of Oldsmobiles, Cadillacs and LaSalle, declares W. Ches Smith, Oldsmobile and used car manager of the Capital Automobile Company, reflect a steady and consistent upward trend in the popularity of these cars.

"It is evident," Mr. Smith asserts, "that the owners of these cars in Fulton and DeKalb counties are spreading the news of the service they are getting from Oldsmobile, Cadillac and LaSalle, and are causing more and more people to come in and see and ride in the cars which have made such an outstanding impression upon their buyers."

So marked is this trend, he adds, that sales volume through the spring months thus far has maintained the same rapid pace it established during the opening weeks of this year—a gain showing a large percentage above that of the same period of last year.

From day to day, Mr. Smith declares, people who have heard of the remarkable service of these three cars visit the Capital Automobile Company's sales and showrooms at 830 West Peachtree street, N. W., each interested in the numerous mechanical and structural fine points of Oldsmobile, Cadillac and LaSalle. Many have evinced special interest in their ease of handling and of driving, their riding comfort, their safety factors and other outstanding features.

"With this interest continuing at a high point," Mr. Smith asserts, "we see no reason why the unprecedented demand for these three cars should not continue at the same pace throughout the year. Such an increase is not to be unexpected in a line of cars that offer to the public the value these cars have to offer."

In addition to the Oldsmobile, for which it is dealer, and Cadillac and LaSalle, for which it is distributor, the Capital Automobile Company offers a full line of used cars on the spacious lot adjoining its building, just across the street from the Biltmore. Here the prospective buyer is enabled to find a car to suit his needs, at a price consistent with others to be found in the city.

The company maintains also one of the most completely equipped service shops in the city, manned by factory trained mechanics—many of them members of the Cadillac Certified Craftsmen's League—who have at hand the most up-to-the-minute tools and machinery to care for every type of auto repair and adjustment.

Owners of Oldsmobiles, Cadillacs and LaSalle, especially, are invited to visit the Capital Automobile Company and to investigate its all-inclusive service.

Experience Equips Trio Mattress Company For Highly Specialized Renovation Work

In this building at 638 Wells street, within a block of Stewart avenue, the Trio Mattress Company, the oldest establishment of its kind in the city, renders to Atlanta home owners a complete service in the renovation and replacement of worn, hard or damaged mattresses.

Spring moving and spring cleaning time, declares J. C. Meaders, proprietor of the Trio Mattress Company, provides an excellent time for the renovation or replacement of worn, broken, hard or "lumpy" mattresses.

"The average householder," Mr. Meaders asserts, "gives but little heed to the condition of the mattress on which he (or she) sleeps. Night after night use causes a laxity of attention to its condition, and usually a feeling of vague discomfort or a passing complaint of inability to sleep results. In such cases, the fault very probably is within the mattress."

The Trio Mattress Company, Mr. Meaders points out, is equipped by long experience to eliminate these faults and to rework and "fluff up" the inner materials of a mattress, so that one may gain the maximum of comfort during resting hours.

In the process of renovation, the filling of an old mattress may be reworked and replaced either in the original cover or a new cover, or new filling may be placed in the old cover. In either case, Mr. Meaders states, the mattress, when returned to the owner, can scarcely be told from a new one.

In order that no inconvenience be caused to householders during the renovation of their mattresses, the Trio Mattress Company has arranged a speedy pickup and delivery service which insures the return of the completed job the same day it is brought to its 638 Wells street shop. Thus, mattresses picked up in the morning may be returned, ready for use, before nightfall.

The Trio Mattress Company is prepared, in addition to general reconditioning work, to rebuild regular mattresses into inner-spring mattresses, at moderate prices, using an all-steel, one-piece inner-spring unit. Another service it offers is in the reworking of studio couches, either upholstered or day bed type, and to furnish new covers. In this connection, it is pointed out, the company maintains a wide variety of stock materials from which the owner may select. No upholstering work is done. Mr. Meaders states, except that required around the base of the studio couch.

With warm weather having arrived again, and with gliders in outdoor use, Mr. Meaders states his company also is prepared to work over and to live up the filling of glider seat pads and cushions.

The Trio Mattress Company, which serves Atlanta and its suburban areas, guarantees satisfaction with all its work. Mr. Meaders asserts, and invites the public to visit his shop and see the precision workmanship that is given each job.

Whether the job be large or small, the Trio Mattress Company rigidly maintains a high standard of workmanship which insures not only speed in production but perfect clarity of detail in the printing process. The company's long and satisfactory service to the business public, Mr. Rybert points out, serves as a guarantee of good work.

The services of the Thomas F. Rybert Printing Company is divided, roughly, into three phases: (1) General commercial printing, which includes all types of forms, cards, stationery, pamphlets, folders, etc., used by business; (2) the Multilith department, which, without the necessity of type or cuts, all offset matter such as circulars, ruled forms, letters, business forms of all kinds, photographs, etc., are reproduced; and (3) the bindery department, which specializes in the production of ruled and bound books of all kinds, as well as booklets, booklets, booklets, etc., which will enable you to identify the planetary interpretations which will be published in The Constitution each day, dealing with the influence of a given planet on the day of your birth, according to the rules of astrology.

RYBERT PRINTING STRESSES QUALITY

Plant Equipped to Render Speedy and Efficient Service to Business.

Printed matter, to serve most effectively in general business use or as a message medium to the consuming public, must combine eye-appeal, quality and a perfect clarity of wording and of printing, declares A. E. Rasbridge, vice president of the Thomas F. Rybert Printing Company, 311-313 Edgewood avenue.

During its almost three decades of service to Atlanta business houses as well as to printers in many other parts of the nation, says Mr. Rasbridge, the Thomas F. Rybert Printing Company has steadily grown and expanded, keeping abreast with the progress of its craft and from time to time adopting the most up-to-date machinery and other equipment necessary to good printing. It is this policy, he asserts, which causes the company to stand now among the leaders in its field.

The Thomas F. Rybert organization, thus equipped, is staffed by men of long experience in every phase of commercial printing and thus is enabled to render to its clients a service equal in economy, efficiency, quality and effectiveness to that of its competitors. It is the combination of these things, Thomas F. Rybert, its president, declares, that has won for the company an enviable reputation as "fast" printers and as "contract" printers.

Whether the job be large or small, the Rybert organization rigidly maintains a high standard of workmanship which insures not only speed in production but perfect clarity of detail in the printing process. The company's long and satisfactory service to the business public, Mr. Rybert points out, serves as a guarantee of good work.

DR. ANDERSON M. SCRUGGS.

Dr. Anderson M. Scruggs, author of "Glory of Earth," member of the Poetry Society of America; Poetry Society of Georgia, past president Atlanta Writer's Club, contributor to a long list of the better known magazines and periodicals in this country and abroad, and whose poems have appeared in Harcourt, Brace & Co., anthologies of "Best Poems" each year from 1930 to 1935, inclusive, was born in West Point, Ga., February 18, on the cusp of the zodiacal sign Aquarius-Pisces. This gives a sensitive, sociable, capable, attractive personality. The position of Mercury shows a strong, imaginative intellect and has produced the author. The sun position gives great capacity for work and high ideals. Venus' position gives a love of music and fine arts. The sun-Uranus position makes him intuitive and inventive. The house position of Mercury makes him keen and witty, alert and practical. The moon-Mars position adds courage to his nature. Jupiter trine the sun tends to produce honors, wealth and fame. The recognitions that have come to him and will continue to come are due to innate ability.

You can get your complete astrological forecast through The Constitution, as compiled by Bernice Denton Pierson, one of America's best known astrologers. Mrs. Pierson does not profess the ability to tell fortunes, to foretell the future, or to solve personal problems, but she can give you a complete and accurate rendition of the position of the sun and planets at the time of your birth, carefully worked out, according to the strict rules of astrology. All you have to do is to fill in the coupon below, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, together with 10 cents in coin to cover the mailing cost. You will then receive through the mail certain pertinent facts which deal astrologically with the sun at the time of your birth, called a sun chart, and with this sun chart, a series of numbers which will enable you to identify the planetary interpretations which will be published in The Constitution each day, dealing with the influence of a given planet on the day of your birth, according to the rules of astrology.

When you have checked each of your numbers, your forecast will be complete.

when rations were late or when it was necessary to give out water drop by drop at a temperature of 50 degrees centigrade (122 degrees Fahrenheit). Only the Italian race and none, other could have supported this.

Il Duce told the farmers, "You are fortunate to receive your prizes on this great day in the history of the nation. You see crowned the efforts of the Italian people, to whom goes the glory which they have merited through sacrifices of blood."

He begged them to "remember that land always recompenses those who are faithful to it. Crises pass, but earth remains, and only land can give full satisfactions."

Amid great cheers he concluded his speech with: "I am with you because I know you are with me."

Afterwards the premier talked to journalists present, had tables of vegetables and fruit brought in and handed enormous apples and pears, bunches of asparagus and artichoke heads to newspapermen with all the jollity of Santa Claus.

WEEK-END CRASHES TAKE LIVES OF 74

Illinois Tops List of States
With 12 Persons Killed.

By the Associated Press.

At least 74 persons met violent death on streets and highways of the nation this week-end.

Illinois topped the list of reports with 12 and Michigan was next with eight.

Three persons were drowned in a rain-swollen creek near Albany, Tex., when their car plunged through a guard rail. A woman and two daughters burned to death when they were unable to escape from an overturned car at Fort Wayne, Ind.

States reporting traffic deaths this week-end and their totals follow:

Alabama 1, Arkansas 2, Arizona 3, California 4, Colorado 1, Connecticut 1, Idaho 1, Indiana 7, Illinois 12, Minnesota 2, Missouri 2, Michigan 8, New York 1, Nebraska 1, New Mexico 3, Oklahoma 4, Oregon 1, Ohio 7, Pennsylvania 1, Texas 6, Tennessee 1, Utah 2, Washington 1, Wisconsin 2.

FLAMES AND PILLAGING SPREAD IN ADDIS ABABA

acts after a new law and order (presumably to be set up by the Italian high command) was established.

The government "gold house," where treasury funds were held, was the scene of a desperate fight as a mob stormed the posts, defended by machine guns. Swarming over the corpses of their comrades, some of whose hands were chopped off in the fighting, the rioters finally succeeded in capturing the gold stores.

The Ethiopian Red Cross headquarters were destroyed.

With the fall of dusk tonight, the streets were becoming quiet and the streets deserted. For the first time since the pillaging broke out, droves of "parya dogs" ventured forth to tear at the mutilated bodies of men and beasts.

In the last 36 hours, it was estimated, more than half a million bullets had been fired from native rifles, raining slaughter throughout the capital.

Mrs. Cornelius Van H. Engert, wife of the American minister, and United States Chief Radio Operator Tanner had narrow escapes from stray bullets.

During the night the correspondents were constantly subjected to attacks of abductees—or wild bandits.

The entire retail center of the city was demolished. The postoffice, Tobacco Regio (national tobacco building—a large structure), triumphal arches and the customs house were but smoldering remains. Munition stores exploded.

At dawn the British legation reported it sighted dust on a distant hilltop which might be the advance guard of the Italian army. Rains, however, might delay the occupation of the capital.

Foreigners were picked up by legation lorries under cover of darkness in the early hours of the morning and carried to comparative safety.

(Most legations are well fortified. The British legation, which has the majority of Americans sought refuge, is guarded by a company of sikhs.)

(NOTE: The following dispatch was received from Addis Ababa, via London.)

ADDIS ABABA SCENE OF WILD CONFLICT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Wild scenes of looting, pillage and brawling took place in this doomed capital today following the flight of Emperor Haile Selassie and his ministers. Many corpses were seen in the streets.

Several Europeans isolated in the streets when the trouble broke out yesterday had narrow escapes. They were rescued by repeated dashes by British subjects from the legation and were brought in to safety in cars and lorries.

Thrilling tales were told by refugees, many of whom lost their houses and shops through pillage and fire. When the emperor left for Djibouti, he ordered the imperial palace to be thrown open to the people and that they be allowed to help themselves. Streams of men, women and children were seen running from all directions to the palace. They returned laden with clothing, beds, carpets and furniture.

The ammunition dump also was thrown open. Thousands of men carried off cases full of ammunition, which was tried out. Shots fired into the air made it sound as if a terrific battle were in progress.

Shops Are Looted.
When townspeople realized the emperor with his ministers had gone they began looting shops. Laughing men and women were seen wearing top hats and European clothing over their ordinary clothes.

Later, when much liquor was consumed, fierce wrangling over the loot started. Swords were drawn and shots fired.

The store of Mohammed Ali was defended by an Indian staff, supported by the British consul, Hope Gill. It was besieged by an infuriated mob. The staff was rescued after putting up a stubborn defense by a party from the British legation.

Most British subjects had taken refuge in the British legation (along with some Americans), where a well-organized camp was set up in the legation park.

Tributes were paid the Britons, who dashed out time and again to rescue isolated foreigners of all nationalities.

Halle's Departure.
Official quarters said after a day of indecision the emperor, who was strongly pressed by the empress, decided at midnight Friday that the only course left open to him, owing to what he called the failure of League support and the overwhelming superiority of the Italian armament, was to leave the country.

In the first newspaper correspondence eyewitness account of the situation in the city, the Associated Press representative said, "In accordance with the Ethiopians' avowed intention to leave a razed capital for the Italian conquerors, looting and burning was continuing."

He, with other correspondents, reported that they were barricaded in their own compound near the government radio station, which was constantly subjected to native attacks.

A great number of the city's population, he reported, were pillaging, firing and even murdering.

Correspondents Fought.
Shortly before the dispatch was filed, the correspondents were driven from the compound by the fire from hundreds of rifles.

The capital of Emperor Selassie, who had abandoned his palace and fled to an unannounced destination, presented the picture of a ghastly wreck.

The entire retail center was demolished and the postoffice, the Tobacco Regio triumphal arches and the customs house were smoldering ruins, in which the remains of munition stores constantly were exploding.

In the center of the downtown sections, the streets were strewn with corpses, many of which had been mutilated. But even an estimate of the number of casualties was impossible at this time.

BLACKSHIRT ARMY MOVES STEADILY AHEAD

WITH A NORTHERN ITALIAN COLUMN APPROACHING ADDIS ABABA, May 3.—(By Wireless from Debrasina)—Italy's main motorized column advancing on Addis Ababa, with Marshal Pietro Badoglio in personal command, camped and rested today at Debrasina after traveling only 15 miles in five hours and spending the night in automobiles on slopes of the mightiest mountain range separating the column from the capital.

Ahead, hundreds of huge trucks at the rate of 10 each hour were churning through Terner pass, more than 10,000 feet high and replete with precipitous 20 per cent grades, curling along the edges of precipices.

The Sabauda division went in ahead in one place and built a sustaining wall 100 yards long and 30 feet high to protect the advancing troops against landslides.

Generally from Terner pass the road to Addis Ababa is downhill, as the capital is only 8,000 feet high.

The trip is increasing in danger.

problem and that leaders will force through some measure at this afternoon's session with a view of eliminating the present committee deadlock.

Couch served notice on Bridges that the chairman's rule over the department was broken, and attributed Bridges' outbreak at the last committee session to a reprisal because "I beat him on three matters of policy."

There were reports yesterday that an effort will be made to increase the size of the new committee from five to seven members, and Councilman

John A. White, fourth ward, announced he will reoffer his plan to establish a director of public safety, "as the only method of solving the police row."

White also will present the following other measures and ask council to refer them to the joint council-citizens' safety commission, which White heads:

1. Request that the Georgia legislature establish a state-wide road patrol, set up blocks of automobile license tags for Fulton and DeKalb counties in order that local cars may be more easily identified and empower Atlanta to establish a divers' license law.

2. Introduction of another measure requiring all local automobile owners to register their cars with the police. No charge would be made.

3. Request that the Georgia legislature establish a state-wide drivers' license law.

Among the other important matters facing council will be:

which she is unwilling to do. A deal among Britain, France and Italy under the 1906 treaty fixing former zones of influence was considered in some French circles to be the most likely way out of the diplomatic impasse.

France is eager to bring Italy back into the lineup against Germany, but difficulties in a three-power conference idea are admitted. Il Duce is expected to object to a conference until sanctions are lifted, to which the British are not likely to agree.

France, meanwhile, promised to protect Haile Selassie while he was in French territory. The French minister was credited with having persuaded the negus to leave the capital.

A RECORD—

Three Million

FORD TRUCKS AND COMMERCIAL CARS

In this month of May, 1936, Ford Motor Company completes the building of three million trucks and commercial cars . . . one-third of all that have been built since the beginning of the industry.

There is no substitute for experience. Ford experience has been twofold. In addition to advancements in methods of manufacture, Ford engineers have gained a first-hand knowledge of the needs of owners in every field of hauling and delivery service. They know WHAT to build, as well as HOW to build it. They are able to design and construct units with exact knowledge of requirements . . . to anticipate changes in operating conditions and even to bring about such changes.

The 8-cylinder V-type engine, introduced by Ford into the commercial field, did just that. Bringing power to haul heavy loads at high speeds . . . and the flexibility to cover delivery routes quickly . . . it cut operating costs in all kinds of service.

Any new 112-inch wheelbase Ford V-8 Commercial Car can be purchased for $25 a month, with usual low down-payment. Any new 131½-inch or 157-inch wheelbase Ford V-8 Truck can be purchased with the usual low down-payment on the new UCC ¼% per month Finance Plans.

Scintillating Broadway Attracts Atlantans and Their Friends

By Sally Forth.

NEW YORK has always proved a mecca for ambitious and talented artists from all parts of the country, and it is natural that Sally views with great satisfaction the accomplishments of Atlantans and their friends, who have bravely sought their fortunes in that metropolitan city. Prominent among these is Guy Woolford, of whom Atlanta is especially proud. For Guy has taken part in many of the New York stage successes, and he is at present ably filling an important role in the successful comedy hit, "One Good Year." The play is in its sixth or seventh month, and promises to run for at least a year. Mrs. Guy Woolford, Guy's mother, left Atlanta recently to visit Guy and Frances, her daughter, who is enrolled at a prominent art school in New York.

While there, she will see her talented son display his ability in "One Good Year" for the third time. Marion Butler, of Roanoke, Va., who has often visited her cousins, the Felix DeGollans, here, is also carving quite a name for herself as an actress and dancer on the Broadway stage. Marion attended the New York School of Dramatic Arts, and she was so accomplished and talented in that line of endeavor that she immediately procured a part in the play, "The Old Red Barn," which is also slated for a successful year. In the play, Marion does two specialty dancing numbers, which have attracted wide and favorable criticism. One of these numbers supports the motif of the old tin-type, and the other is a more graceful and picturesque number. In one of the artistic dances, she has a partner, and an effective and lovely arrangement is displayed.

This is not Marion's first experience on the stage, for she has appeared in several other shows during her residence in New York. Then again there are Mr. and Mrs. William Fender. William is the son of Mrs. W. L. M. Austin, and they resided in Atlanta for many years. During that time, William attended Tech, where he was a member of the A. T. O. fraternity, and a prominent member of the Tech Marionettes. He then went to Greenville, S. C., where he directed the Little Theater plays, and married the leading lady, Joy Jones, in one of the most popular of them. William is now the director of the Provincetown theater in New York, and his charming wife, Joy, is frequently pictured in prominent magazines. She is the leading lady of the illustrations of the story, "The Iron Will," which is running serially in a popular magazine.

Marie Beckett, daughter of the Howard Becketts, who is attending the Miss Theodora Irvine School of the Theaters in New York, was mentioned by Sally several weeks ago as appearing in the school play, "Dangerous Corners." The play was such a success that it is being presented again at a New York department store in order to accommodate the huge crowds, which flocked to see it.

Among others who are doing interesting work in the big city are Sarah and Mary Cobb Erwin, daughters of the Andrew Erwin, of Athens, and well-known visitors to Atlanta. Sarah is attending the art school at Columbia, while Mary Cobb is taking a course in short story writing at the same institution. Many others have felt the fascination of this melting pot and dramatic center, but all things must end, good or bad, and so must this "Sally."

TWO FORMER attractive young Tampa, Fla., matrons are having a delightful reunion these days, while Mrs. Currie Witt is visiting Mrs. Frederick Morgan at her home on Peachtree road. Mrs. Witt, who was Miss Lavinia Sparkman, and Mrs. Morgan, formerly Miss Lola Hammond, are filling their time with reminiscences of the days when they played together as children in Tampa and later when they attended the Florida State College for Women in Tallahassee.

Lavinia is a tall, stately brunette and Lola is a petite blonde, so they are a perfect foil for each other and make a most attractive looking couple. Lola has lived in Atlanta only a few months but her charming personality has already endeared her to a wide circle of friends and they are entertaining her and her guest at a number of delightful informal social affairs during the time Lavinia is visiting here.

It is particularly appropriate that Lola has returned to Georgia for residence as she is the daughter of the late William Hammond, who lived in Griffin before moving to Tampa many years ago and who was a member of a prominent Georgia family.

St. Luke's Auxiliary Board Meets Today

The executive board of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Luke's Episcopal church will meet Monday at 11 o'clock in the assembly room. St. Anne's circle, of which Mrs. Von Hermann is chairman, will serve luncheon at 12:30 o'clock to the entire auxiliary. This will be followed by a general meeting of all the circles of the church at which time several outstanding workers in the social service field will speak. Mrs. Robert C. Alston is president of the auxiliary.

Rainbow Sewing Club

Rainbow Sewing Club met last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Orouke on Hoyt street. The club will give a tacky party at the home of Mrs. S. D. Srite at 2 Wilson avenue on Wednesday at 7:30 o'clock and admission is 10 cents.

The club meets with Miss Will Kitchens at 34 Hoyt street on Thursday. Since the changing of the time, the club meets from 3 to 5 o'clock instead of from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Atlanta U. D. C. Will Help Stage Rose Show School Committee Plans Benefit

The Rabun Gap-Nacoochee school committee of Atlanta Chapter of United Daughters of the Confederacy will sponsor a benefit bridge on Wednesday at 3 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club, the proceeds to be used for building a cottage at the school where a family may live while receiving an education. The cottage is being built as a memorial to the late Miss Alice Baxter, valued member of the chapter.

Rabun Gap-Nacoochee is a farm school and each farm is a foundation for the education and support of a farming family during its term of residence. Each home is a school dormitory and each man, woman and child of school age is a student. Each family is given its separate boundary and land and required to operate it as a model farm.

A model six-room frame cottage with a barn and poultry house is furnished each family. About 40 acres of land including a garden and pasture is furnished and each family that is accepted and assigned to a farm, the parents as well as the children, undertake to carry out a prescribed plan of farming and a course of training as pupils of the school, and according to its rules and regulations. Experts of the Carnegie Corporation have described the school as one of the most significant in all the mountain region.

It is here that the Atlanta Chapter will build one of these cottages to be called, "The Alice Baxter Cottage," honoring the memory of Miss Baxter, who was interested in the education of mountain people. For this benefit many tables have been reserved and many prizes have been donated. Tables are $4 and players are requested to bring cards.

The committee includes Mrs. H. W. McLarty, chairman; Mrs. Croom Farbridge, co-chairman, and Mesdames E. E. Barry, Houston Crane, Lambdin Kay, J. J. Dinmore, Frank Davidson, H. B. Griffin, Harry Ellis John B. Wilson, C. J. Sheehan, Alice Deaton Jennings, Mrs. A. J. G. De Loach, A. J. Bohn, W. M. Carmichael, B. F. Waller, J. W. Horne, Odie Poundstone. This committee is being assisted by the president, Mrs. Forrest Kibbe, each member of the executive board.

Book Committee To Be Entertained

Mrs. W. S. McLaurin Jr., chairman of the book committee of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls, will entertain her committee at luncheon today, following a business meeting which will be held at 11 o'clock at her home, 1343 Peachtree street.

Mrs. John K. Otley, chairman of the book committee of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls, will entertain her committee at luncheon today, following a business meeting which will be held at 11 o'clock at her home, 1343 Peachtree street.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence inviting names held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A metropolitan newspaper reporter recently interviewed a contemporary society bachelor on the subject of the modern girls. He branded them bold and bawdy and said he was dying for one of them to pop up and ask him a question to which he could tell her "NO" and give his reasons. Namely, that she lacked feminine charm and all the other qualities necessary to being a good wife. Asked to name the qualifications he had in mind he branded himself a stuffed shirt, all puffed up with ego, overbearing conceit and a nasty disposition thrown in for good measure. The girl he married must be able to laugh at his bad humors, forgive his indiscretions, be tolerant toward him under all circumstances and know her way around.

Far be it from me to foment strife between the lads and gals. There's enough already. But the truth should be told. There may be some bold modern misses in the map who hold modern misses in the map and lower strata of society. But the vast majority in between have managed admirably to hold down jobs, formerly held by men, and to do so with the masculine element, and held on to their femininity as well. Their nails are manicured, their hair is clean and curled, their blouses are dainty and their shoes are shined. Whatever employment they are engaged in, their chief interest is in locating the boy-friend who may be a potential husband. They are planning to be married and have a home. However hard they try to please the boss, they try harder to please the boy-friend, once he is located. Their very eagerness sometimes traps them into phoning him too often and proposing too many dates; but it is not boldness, it is impatience with the baffful, or the balking boy-friend who can't seem to get going.

In these days he is frequently quite far removed from matrimony, financially speaking, so she offers suggestions about her willingness to go it fifty-fifty with him, not only on tickets to the flickers but on the big ticket for the long journey into the promised land of matrimony. This is not boldness. It is expediency, sometimes known as common sense. Lots of modern lassies are in bad jams with balking boy-friends on whom they have pinned their hopes of husband, home and babies. And in line with their general efficiency the modern misses are trying to do something about it.

Certainly the modern girl is not boldness. It is knowing something about everything and being able to carry on good conversation is proof against being boldness. Never before in history have girls known half so much or talked half so well. Never before have they participated in such a variety of activities or attained such success in every line. If the modern man finds one of these boldness it is because she is too good for him rather than because she is not good enough. He

Watkins-Garland Marriage Solemnized at Jackson Ceremony

JACKSON, Ga., May 3.—A marriage of widespread social interest was that of Miss Mollie Watkins, of this city, and Benjamin Byrd Garland, of Atlanta, which took place at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Watkins. Rev. R. P. Etheridge, pastor of the Jackson Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the bride and groom were met by a large party of friends. The bride wore a gown of white tulle and carried a large bouquet of white flowers. The groom wore a tuxedo and carried a sword. The ceremony was a simple but elegant affair, and the bride and groom were pronounced man and wife.

The bride and groom were then seated at a table with their parents and other guests. A large reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, and many friends and relatives were present. The bride and groom were both very happy and enjoyed the ceremony very much.

SOCIETY EVENTS

MONDAY, MAY 4.
Girls' circle of Tallulah Falls school sponsors a benefit bridge party at 3 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn will entertain the Studio Club of Atlanta at Glenridge, on Dunwoody road.

The Peachtree Garden Club presents Miss Alice M. Carson, well-known authoress, in a lecture at Brookhaven Club.

Atlanta Club Plans Dance

The Atlanta Club, composed of women employees of the city hall, will give a dance on May 22, at Peachtree Gardens. This is the second dance in a series to be given by this popular club, and a well-known Atlanta orchestra will furnish the music.

Miss Lillian Everett is president of the club for 1936, and those desiring reservations may get in touch with her, or with the chairman in charge of outside activities to boot. The man who doesn't appreciate her is deaf, dumb and blind.

Mrs. Morris Talks.
Mrs. Emma Garrett Morris will speak Tuesday at 10 o'clock at Egleston hall, on new plays of this season, continuing her talk of last week. "Winter," which received the critics' award as best play; "Lady Precious Stream," "Death in the Cathedral," "St. Joan," "First Lady," "Ethan Frome," will be some of the plays treated. The public is invited.

SHERIFF DAVIS DENIED NEW FEDERAL TRIAL
MACON, Ga., May 3.—(AP)—Sheriff Gordon E. Davis, of Thomas county, convicted in Valdosta several weeks ago on charges of conspiracy to violate the federal internal revenue laws, was denied a new trial yesterday before Judge Bascom S. Deaver in United States district court.

can't stand the constant reminder of her superiority that association with her gives him.

The 1936 model is a snappy little number. She is good to look at, intelligent in conversation, efficient in work, a pleasant companion in play. She can make her living, bear babies, entertain her husband and engage in outside activities to boot. The man who doesn't appreciate her is deaf, dumb and blind.

My Day By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Friday.—The weather is almost like summer here today. I should have liked to have gotten up early to ride, for it is really beginning to be too warm to ride in the middle of the morning, but a group from Mr. Tugwell's planning division came over last evening to show their work to the President and all of us.

Charts and models furnished the long upstairs corridor of the White House. It was 11:30 before they went home, and a tremendous basket of mail still awaited my attention, so early rising seemed out of the question this morning. Instead, Colonel and Mrs. Frederick Stuart Greene and I had a leisurely breakfast at 8:30.

Colonel Greene says that he has ceased to get excited about anything in the world except owning a horse that is actually winning steeplechase races. His son schooled this horse and is now riding it. He has two victories to his credit this year, one at Richmond and one at Middleburg, Va. Mrs. Greene and I looked at each other with mutual understanding, for I do not think mothers are very fond of seeing their sons riding in steeplechases even though they realize they cannot prevent it.

I went out into the garden to receive it. One chubby little boy standing next to me bore with the photographers for quite a time and then in a most grownup manner said: "I am embarrassed."

I gasped and said: "Where did you learn that word?" To which he responded quite solemnly: "I have known it for a long time!"

The last get-together luncheon of the cabinet ladies took place today, and it was warm enough to have it in the garden. We decided to have a picnic for the senate ladies as we did last year, so that will give us one more opportunity of seeing them, as well as being together ourselves.

This afternoon the members of the American Council on Education, 550 strong, were here for tea. The President had to receive two new foreign ministers in the Blue Room, so there was a little confusion this morning as to whether my tea party or his foreign ministers were going to have precedence. It was finally decided that he should receive his guests at 4:30 and 4:45, and then the Educational Council could hold full sway.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Val Clarke, engaged to Robert Greely, goes to New York from New Manchester to shop with Mrs. Warren, her Aunt Mahala's housekeeper. Val's cousin, Kate Hollister, fashion magazine editor, gives a party where Val meets Hugh Malcolm, playwright; Bret Gallahaw, New Manchester boy who while on a New York newspaper wrote a best seller; Leslie Crawford, Bret's halfbrother, and Winifred Sperry who are starting in Hugh's "End of Years"; and Guy Williams, who inherited millions and has a small part in the play. Bret, engaged to Kate, married wealthy Evelyn Garfield. He hates Leslie after losing a will contest and Leslie resents Hugh's interest in Winifred. Guy takes Val to Pete Gaborau's luxurious place near Philadelphia. Leslie (Leese) Cameron, who with Crandall Scott, greets Guy with kisses and later strikes Val who defends herself so well Guy has to assist Leese out. Pete's gambling rooms are raided and Crandall drives Val back. During a stage storm scene Leslie drops dead, shot through the heart. Hurrying from the theater, Val sees Hugh who says he's just come from the corner clear store. Bret had left earlier to catch a train. Leese goes with Crandall to see Val and Val's aunt orders her out for smoking. Val goes along. Returning she finds a wire from Kate, goes New York and clears Hugh by saying he was just leaving the clear store when she saw him. Aunt Mahala sends her trunk to Kate's apartment. When Hugh first saw Val he inspired a play and he offered her a salary while he studied her personality. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XIV.

"Your aunt says you're not to leave the house, Miss Val. She says you're to come into the library at once."

Val looked at her, not really seeing her. After a moment she put a hand on the housekeeper's arm, managed a faint smile. Then she turned, opened the door and went out.

Leese had said, "Stop at a telephone somewhere and I'll give Chippy a buzz. Chippy's an awful kid, but he's a senior at Yale and that ought to help." And so they had driven 25 miles and found the lumbering young giant called Chippy who had promptly pulled Leese into his car and led the way to a rather ordinary roadside place that boasted a floor show.

It was a sad little show, but the orchestra was fair and Chippy seemed to know every one, including the waiters and the musicians, and Leese was having a grand time.

Long ago when they were leaving New Manchester Val's awkward apology for Aunt Mahala's outburst brought from Leese, "But you're not the one to be sorry—this is the second time I've brought you grief, Val, and feel pretty bad about it." Looking away, she said, "What a fool I was to think you were trying to make Guy . . . and continued to think it until Crandall broke down and gave me the inside about you two. I'm glad to have a hand on Val's sleeve then, eyes bright with feeling—for you, Val, Crandall too well to be true. I'd go for him myself if I could get Guy out of my system."

And now as she danced with Crandall and felt the warm little circle where his cheek touched her head and heard the low husky voice close to her ear and thought of the gentleness of it, Val understood that a kiss given casually on a Pennsylvania highway after a wild night at Pete Gaborau's had left an indelible imprint on this sweet boy's heart.

He could not tell her quickly enough

"It's the real thing, Val. Wake up in the morning and you're all over the place, go around thinking about you and wanting to see you every minute of the day, tumble off to sleep every night remembering how your eyes say things that can't be put into words and the way you toss your head when you laugh and—"

"Hush . . .!" Val said. "You mustn't talk like that, Crandall. Your voice was casual enough, but your throat ached with the pain of knowing she must hurt him. . . Haven't you ever kissed a girl just because you thought it might be fun to kiss her, Crandall? I mean—a kiss doesn't mean anything, does it? Like that night when we were driving back to New York. Remember? You—you wanted to kiss me and—"

"You did and—"

"But she couldn't go through with it—not now. The way he looked at her—the startled look of his eyes, the tightened muscles of the arm holding her to him drained her courage."

"Go on," he said. "Maybe I'll be able to make some sense out of what you're saying in a little while."

"I wanted to kiss you and you wanted me to and I did and—why the pause?"

"What do you think?" Head dropped back, smiling, thinking: "I must make him understand before he goes away tonight. Understand principally, she meant, about Robert—Robert who would look upon this nice boy as a juvenile. But she simply could not tell him now. When he continued to look down at her in silence, she said again, "What do you think, fellows?"

"I think you're too darned sweet to be real," he said. "and I think I'm the luckiest bird in the world."

And as if that settled everything, he dropped his head again and his cheek against the cushion and his cheek brown hair until a voice said:

"Ain't love sum'n?" And there was Chippy tapping Crandall on the shoulder and holding out his arm to Val.

"Leese tells me it's romance in full bloom, but being a hard-boiled realist, I'm skeptical. Tell me about it—does your head do things and do you turn weak all over every time you hear his name?"

Val laughed. "Funny," she said, "but it's one of the things you can't reduce to mere words. But why should you ask me? I'll bet you're an authority on the subject, Chippy."

"Love," said Chippy, with great disgust. "I wouldn't recognize it if I found it in my soup. And I wouldn't eat the soup if I did."

At 11 o'clock Val told Crandall: "I'd like to stay on until you and Leese and Chippy were ready to go, and you know how things are. Couldn't you take me home and come back?"

Crandall understood her. He went off to find Leese and Chippy and presently came back with Val's things and his own hat and coat.

It was a dark, moonless night and a fog was creeping up from the sound.

Val knew what Crandall would say and do—what she must say and not do. They were as far as the circumstances were concerned, back on the Pennsylvania highway now. A boy and a girl definitely conscious that they were a boy and a girl . . . alone, and keenly aware of that, too . . . Crandall would put his arm around her shoulders and draw her to him, and after a little he would take his foot from the accelerator and the car would gradually loose speed until they were not moving . . . and then—

"Do you really prefer sitting off in a corner by yourself? Come on, close in and let's pretend we're friends."

She looked at him. Now, Val—it isn't easy, but it isn't going to be any easier if you put it off. But his arm had slid along the back of the seat now, and was pulling her against him. Tell him, tell him, tell him! The hum of the motor was changing key. You little idiot! Tell him—now!

The idling motor purred softly.

"Val, I feel like a sap saying it, but I'm waiting until her face came up, waiting until he could see her eyes. I love you, Val . . ."

Oh, Crandall . . . Clinging to him then, just as she had the first time, feeling his lips on her lips, feeling his arms tight about her—suddenly wanting to be kissed, wanting to be held in his arms, wanting it terribly and no longer caring that she hadn't the courage to tell him.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

LETTERS FROM FOREIGN LANDS

I—Stockholm, Sweden.

(Editor's Note—This week Uncle Ray will present his readers another series of letters written by boys and girls of foreign lands—of Sweden, Belgium, Holland and Kenya, Africa. In addition to their general interest, these letters should have special value as school topics in geography.)

Stockholm is Sweden's capital, and a very fine city. It is sometimes people call it "The Venice of the North," for it was built over islands. There are many bridges crossing the waterways.

"I am very much interested in physics, and I spend a great deal of my spare time making experiments with the radio. I also like to swim and go to bicycle riding. My friends are fond of skating, skiing, handball, fencing and soccer."

"During the past year I must have read at least a hundred books. The one I liked best was 'The Burning Desert,' by Knud Holmboe. Among the other favorite books I have read the past few years are 'The Forbidden Coast,' 'Cape Farewell,' and 'The Story of San Michele.'"

"If you should come to Stockholm this year, you would find the city different at least a hundred books. The one I liked best was 'The Burning Desert,' by Knud Holmboe. Among the other favorite books I have read the past few years are 'The Forbidden Coast,' 'Cape Farewell,' and 'The Story of San Michele.'"

"With many thanks for your interest in the boys and girls of Sweden, I remain, your Swedish friend."

"SVEN LINDBLAD."

Our interest in Sweden and her people will continue, Sven. I have been almost six years since I had the pleasure of visiting your country. I hope fortune will lead me your way again before too long. I'd like to see the new houses and bridges in Stockholm.

Perrin Blanks Crackers a Pelicans Take Final Game, 5-0

It very likely was the most emotionally intense two minutes, three and two-fifths seconds ever clicked off on a watch. I mean those two minutes and few seconds on Saturday afternoon at Churchill Downs when Bold Venture won the Kentucky Derby.

All the way back home yesterday as the train rolled on, I could see that mad rush from the starting stalls, see Brevity go down to his knees and recover; see Granville bumped badly and little Joe Stout go sailing through the air like a bundle of silk someone had tossed.

And then they were in front of the stands and the crowd was roaring. And then they were gone and running with them was the riderless horse, Granville, the thoroughbred running it out by instinct.

And then Bold Venture was out in front with a terrific burst of speed. And then the great crowd began to call for Brevity and he began to come from nowhere to run with Bold Venture. And then they were in the stretch and Bold Venture had met the challenge and won by a head.

One boy had barely escaped death beneath the feet of the plunging horses. The favorite had all but been knocked down and out of the race. They had run the mile and a quarter with one of the most pulse-thumping finishes in 62 years of Derby history.

And only two minutes, three and two-fifths seconds had elapsed.

It leaves one limp. A great prize fight in which heavyweights are fighting and one man is being knocked down but keeps getting up to fight again; a flight of wild turkeys through the tree tops, and the Derby—for me they have the greatest emotional intensity of anything sport offers.

The Derby packs an awful lot into those few seconds. Reporters go to their typewriters with shaking fingers and pulses that are speeded up. Only a great fight or a great Derby does that. It answers some atavistic challenge in the blood and the brain.

WHEN THE RACE WAS DONE.

When the race was done I hurried down from the press box to the jockeys' quarters to wait for Ira Hanford, who had just taken the horse into the winner's circle reserved for the Derby winner.

It is a curious place, this room where the little men of the game dress for the job. There are benches, lockers and valets. Each jockey has his valet, a uniformed hireling who helps the jockey with his tack and his dressing. They are, for the most part, tough little men who speak a language all their own and who live dangerously and briefly in their game. The riding years are not many.

Wayne Wright, who rode Brevity, is not the most popular jockey in the game as far as his fellow riders are concerned. Only one of them came over to pat the leading money rider on the back and tell him he should have won.

Wright had done a little bumping of horses himself in the Santa Anita races and there was not much sympathy for him in the jockeys' room.

There was no charge that the boys ganged Brevity, although the official recognition of rough riding and the suspension of three jockeys did cause much comment. They don't disqualify horses, especially winning horses, in the big stakes.

BECOMING A JOCKEY.

Stables are literally swamped with applications from wild-eyed kids who want to be jockeys. The requirements are strict. The boy should start between the ages of 15 and 17 at a weight of 95 pounds. He should be short with strong hands and shoulders. And he should have small feet.

The beginning is as an exercise boy. From that they go into competition. Hanford, the Derby winner, was an apprentice jockey, the first one to win a Derby.

He weighed 101 pounds and had to be loaded with 25 pounds of "dead weight" for the Derby requirement of 126 pounds on each colt.

COLONEL MATT WINN.

Colonel Matt Winn, executive director of the Downs, hasn't made a wager on a race in 32 years. The last day he wagered he hit two 100-to-1 winners. He placed $5 on a horse named S. A. B. Came in third, but the two horses ahead of him were disqualified. The colonel then put down $20 on a horse named Kris Krinkle and he won at 100 to 1.

Which record isn't a bad one with which to stop.

This year the betting was $1,269,078 on the eight races. This was about $200,000 more than was wagered last year.

Betting on the Derby was $472,750, not quite a half million dollars. This was something of a disappointment but is explained by the fact that Brevity was such a top-heavy favorite no one really did much heavy wagering on any other entry. And the Brevity odds were so short as to discourage betting. A lot of late money came in on Bold Venture in the last hours of betting.

The largest single bet, of course, was by Austin C. Taylor, the Canadian gold mine owner.

He walked up to the $100 window, opened up his billfold, took out twenty-five $1,000 bills and wagered the whole amount on the nose of his flyer, Indian Broom.

The Derby figures are supplied by the Courier-Journal, which newspaper sends out its own auditors to check the figures. They supply the copyrighted story on the wagering.

ALAS, POOR GRANVILLE.

Granville's misfortune was a severe one. The colt was getting a very good play in the betting and was regarded as a good solid horse with a real chance to win.

In all that wild melee after the start his jockey was tossed off, escaping unhurt. I talked with him after the race.

"It all happened so fast," he said, "I didn't know what

TONY CANZONERI FACES FLARNIN IN FRIDAY BOUT

Lightweight Champ's Title Will Not Be at Stake in Battle.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Lightweight Champion Tony Canzoneri and welterweight contender Jim Flarnin, fighting Friday night here, headline the nation's boxing program this week.

For Canzoneri, it's another bout in one of the most active campaigns ever waged by any fighter. Flarnin, the pink-cheeked, baby-faced brawler from Vancouver, has come out of semi-retirement but is favored largely because of the tremendous weight advantage he will enjoy.

With his title not at stake, it is unlikely that Canzoneri will be more than a couple of pounds over the 135-pound lightweight limit. The New York State Athletic Commission has ordered Flarnin to balance the weights at not more than 147, the welterweight limit.

On the same night, in San Francisco, Eddie (Babe) Risko, of Syracuse, world middleweight ruler, will engage Fred Apostoli, of San Francisco, in a 10-round non-title fight.

Billy Celebron, of Rockford, Ill., the New York State Commission's No. 1 contender for Barney Ross' welterweight crown, will meet Izzy Jannazzo, of New York, at 10 rounds here tomorrow night.

He says Cleveland also has a great club but can't get very excited about the Indians because of their inability to win regularly on the road.

"And I'm having one of my most trying seasons," said the Rajah, shaking his head. "I'm pitching collapsed suddenly. I'm not getting any more and a lot of easy catches go past him for hits. If our pitching had held up, we'd be right up there, though, as we have been hitting well."

Platy sh... We asked Jimmy Dykes, White Sox manager, how his old hand, Al Simmons, looked with the Tigers. Jimmy replied:

"I think Al will do the Tigers a lot of good and I believe all his troubles were mental ones. But he didn't look so good when we played Detroit. He is backing away from every pitch. He doesn't get that old-time Simmons' power into his blows."

Good old days... Oscar Vitt, manager of the Newark Bears, saw his first major league baseball game in 15 years the other day. The impression on the former Detroit star was that they don't play as hard today as yesterday.

"They don't fight so hard," said Vitt. "When I played, the pitchers used to dust off every batter. We used to threaten every enemy batter from the field and every player from the bench. I'll never forget how my Cobb used to sit after the game, file his spikes, and about: 'I'll get you in the third inning!' to some infielder."

One day, Vitt was knocked unconscious by one of Johnson's fast ones. As he lay in the dirt, Donnie Bush, his teammate and now manager of the Minneapolis Millers, rushed up with:

"Get up with you, yellow bum, and hit one back at him!"

"Then the days," sighed Oscar. "The next day I had to play against the White Sox. Donnie Bush and Jim Scott pitched and I never saw one of his roundhouse curves all afternoon."

DETROIT TIGERS HAD BAD BREAKS COMING--RAJAH

Hornsby Thinks Greenberg's Loss Will Prevent Champs Repeating.

By Paul Michelson.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Down the sports trail:

Rajah and the sick Tiger... Rogers Hornsby, a shrewd baseball player who is down on his luck right now with his collar-ridden St. Louis Browns, thinks the Detroit Tiger will be lucky to repeat in the American league race now that its widest stripe, Hank Greenberg, is on the sidelines.

"The Tigers were lucky to get Jack Burns from us to take over Hank's job," said the Rajah, "but they'll miss his hitting badly. Burns is a good hitter and a good fielder but he won't drive in runs the way Greenberg did. They say Greenberg will be out for six weeks with his fractured wrist. I'll wager it'll be closer to eight or nine and by that time some team may be far in front of the Tigers—and it may be too late. I see that Mickey Cochrane is getting banged up, too. Well, the Tigers have some tough luck coming by the law of averages. They went through two big seasons without a serious injury."

The Rajah predicts that New York and Boston now have a big chance to cop. He says Cleveland also has a great club but can't get very excited about the Indians because of their inability to win regularly on the road.

"And I'm having one of my most trying seasons," said the Rajah, shaking his head. "I'm pitching collapsed suddenly. I'm not getting any more and a lot of easy catches go past him for hits. If our pitching had held up, we'd be right up there, though, as we have been hitting well."

Old Hoss on Active List

Riggs Stephenson.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 3.—(AP)—Manager Riggs Stephenson, of the Birmingham Barons, placed himself and Arthur Jones, right-handed pitcher, on the active list today as the club left for Atlanta for a series with the Crackers, beginning tomorrow. To make room for the additions, Stephenson returned Joe Sims, right-handed hurler, to Houston, from whence he came here on option, and placed Hensel (Hank) Hulvey, veteran moundman, on the suspended list. Manager Stephenson is not expected to take over his outfield post for several days.

Galvin Is First-String, Says Cracker Skipper

Jim Will Be No. 1 Man in View of His Heavy Hitting and Steady Backstopping.

By Jack Troy.

Jim Galvin, the G-man of the Crackers, is going to remain as the first-string catcher for a while, Manager Eddie Moore said last night. Galvin, who started the season as second-string receiver and Number One pinch-hitter, has been rewarded for his great stickwork and steady backstopping.

At the present time, Galvin tops the Crackers batters with an average of .360. He is tied for the lead in runs batted in with Al Browne. Each has accounted for 19.

The G-man and the B-boy are two very fine rookies, as you may suspect. Galvin has either sharp line drives or long-distance wallops. In the final game with the Pelicans yesterday, Galvin, who started the season as second-string receiver and Number One pinch-hitter, has been rewarded for his great stickwork and steady backstopping.

In fact, he hit one to the stands, all right, but Eddie (Wild Irish) Moore, who appeared on the last show promoted by Henry Weber, will be the headline on the program which inaugurates Frank Speer's professional career on Tuesday night, May 12, at Ponce de Leon park.

Speer, carrying out a last wish by the deceased Weber, has taken the job of either Jim McMillan or Gus Sonnenberg, former champion; Orville Brown, who wrestled O'Mahony to a 90-minute draw here recently; Ray Steele, or Dorv Roche. All are in the first team.

The youthful promoter, who has established connections that he believes will enable him to continue the type of shows Henry Weber consistently offered Atlantans for seven years, plans a strong supporting card.

DAILY SHORT STORY

BLUE NOTE

Burt Mundy Learned Something About the Singer He Loved Which Changed His Tune.

BY FREDERIC DEWEY.

Lorine Manton was a blues singer. Not an especially good one, or well known. What she did have was a tricky figure, a personality, and a pleasant though not particularly striking singing voice.

In Lorine's scheme of things that was enough. During the latter days of prohibition she had made an honest, somewhat precarious living by singing in various gin mills and honky-tonks, and now that a kindly government had placed its official sanction upon organized drinking, she saw no reason to change her work.

The only change was that instead of singing in the darkened, smoke-filled joints known as "Tons", she exhibited her abilities nightly in a slightly better drinking and dining spot on the fringe of the more exclusive night life. The patrons of the Club Nocturne were no more of Lorine than what she gave them. Anyway, by 1 o'clock

One night fate chance to lead the footstep of Burt Mundy into the Club Nocturne. He was tired after spending all evening rigging up fresh propaganda for his latest client, an actress in a show which had just hit the boards in town.

Burt was a press agent, and a good one. What he didn't know about music psychology and the art of the buildup just wasn't in the books. But even he was willing to admit that at times the racket was discouraging. It appeared more than probable, after three performance, that the new chicken he had taken under his wing had laid an egg.

Burt wasn't a frequent visitor at the Club Nocturne.

He knew the owner casually, as he did most of the operators of night clubs around town. A large acquaintance was part of his stock in trade. So it was that he had never seen Lorine Manton before.

She appeared in the small circle of a blue baby spot in the center of the small cleared space rimmed by tables and rendered a couple of torch songs in her mediocre nostalgic style. Burt forgot to sip his nightcap. Something about the girl, her voice or her figure, struck a responsive chord in his consciousness.

Even to his own surprise, the next night found Burt at the Club Nocturne. Only this time, owing to a little talk Burt had with the manager, after doing her number Lorine appeared in a different dress and was introduced to Burt. They sat at the table for an hour or so, while Burt, to good purpose learning things about her.

"You've got something, Miss Manton," he said irrelevantly. "If you will, I'd like to talk to you about it sometime. Lorine smiled indifferently and Burt frowned after her departing figure.

It soon became a stock bit of knowledge among Burt's intimate friends that he had taken to frequenting a third-rate dive, the Club Nocturne. They all dropped in, at one time or another, to find Burt Mundy, the sophisticated, ensconced at a rindside table either waiting for Lorine to appear or talking with her afterward.

Burt shrugged off their banter. He didn't care, for he had discovered that in some wild manner, he had fallen head over heels in love with Lorine.

Not that he had ever got to first base with her. After the first few weeks Burt came to the conclusion that maybe having an exploiter for a husband wouldn't help her career any at all. He had decided that a career was what she needed, and convinced her, too.

Lorine was unaware of his business. His offer of arranging for singing lessons she took as a friendly gesture, and accepted. From then on the relationship was kept on a basis of friendship and nothing more, although Burt, madly in love with her, at times found it difficult to remain in character.

He took it upon himself to build Lorine up in the way he knew so well. His friends he threatened with dire happenings if they intimated by word or deed to Lorine what he was doing. And in the greater portion of his spare time Burt pleaded and schemed with his connections on the dailies to give him a break with Lorine.

A year went by. Due to Burt's unflagging efforts, the daily press showed more and more often pictures of Lorine Manton, the "exotic torch singer," a slight prize-filled blurb. As a result Burt's unsuspecting heartbreak achieved a fame that was out of all proportion to her abilities.

Fascinated by the success of his labor of love, Burt pulled strings here and there with men who operated awfully night clubs than the Club Nocturne. As her fame grew, she was approached by the managers and graduated to a better job, and then another and another, all under the advice and direction of her friend Burt.

At last Burt realized that he had promoted her until she had reached the apogee of her success. She was a featured vocalist in one of the best dance bands in town. No longer was she despised in the blurbist Burt still wrote as a "torch singer." She was known as a "chanteuse" now.

Then came the payoff. One early morning Burt was sitting, as usual, as close as he could get to the bandstand in the place where Lorine was working. A stranger stopped at his table. "Are you Burt Mundy?" he asked.

Burt, oddly smiling. The man delved into a pocket and produced a folded paper. "I'm a process server, Mr. Mundy," Burt took the paper and opened it.

The crease grew red in the face and neck choked. It was a subpoena to appear in court to answer the charge of Gordon Manton that he had alienated the affections of Gordon's wife, Lorine!

HOW TO RESPOND TO A NO TRUMP BID.

When your partner opens the bidding with no trump there are two things you must keep in mind:

1. Your partner has a 4-3-3-3 distribution, the worst possible distribution in support of a trump suit.

2. Your average expectancy is game when the combined hands hold six honor tricks, or five and one-half honor tricks with many honor cards, or an easily established five card or longer suit.

If you hold about one and one-half honor tricks you should raise to two no trump. Even with only one plus honor trick you should raise if your hand contains a five-card suit headed by at least the queen. For example, if your partner bids one no trump, and you hold spades Q 8 5 3, hearts ace 7 2, diamonds 9 5 4, clubs 8 3, you should bid two no trump. Likewise, raise to two no trump with spades 8 4 2, hearts king 8 5 3, diamonds ace 6, clubs 8 5 2, or with spades ace queen 6 4 3, hearts 7 5, diamonds 8 6 4, clubs 7 5 2.

Do not forget that when your hand contains a large number of honor cards, the honor trick requirement for any no trump bid or raise may be slightly reduced. Even one honor trick is enough for a raise if your hand contains four or more honor cards.

Thus, you raise your partner to two no trump holding spades queen jack 3, hearts queen 7 5 2, diamonds 8 6 4, clubs queen 8 7.

A Bidding Pitfall.

Hands with enormous strength in honor tricks, but weak in distribution, offer bidding pitfalls that only the wary can avoid. Here is one of them, culled from a recent tournament.

DEMOCRATS REPORT RECORD REGISTRATION

National Survey Reveals Active Political Week Certain.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—Democratic headquarters claimed the biggest nation-wide democratic registration in history tonight as republicans watched California for the next indication of presidential sentiment.

The week's political activities start tomorrow with the Maryland preference primary. On Tuesday republicans will hold primaries in South Dakota as well as in California and state conventions in Connecticut and Tennessee. The same day also will see the democratic state convention in Missouri and the Alabama preference primary.

The District of Columbia republican convention will be held on Thursday. On Saturday republican conventions of Georgia, Idaho and Washington State will be held.

London Move.

The voters of California will cast ballots in presidential primaries on Tuesday, with supporters of Governor Landon, of Kansas, endeavoring to defeat a move to send an unopposed delegation to the party's national convention next month at Cleveland.

In the democratic primary, political experts will compare the total vote for President Roosevelt with the aggregate of votes cast in the republican election.

Two other names will appear in the democratic primaries of that state, both entered to meet technical requirements. They are Upton Sinclair, the former leader of the end-poverty-in-California movement, and the latter introducer of legislation to effectuate the Townsend old-age pension plan.

Roosevelt formally endorsed 44 persons he himself picked as candidates for delegates to the national convention from California.

3,000,000 Registered.

Nearly 3,000,000 Californians are entitled to vote in next Tuesday's presidential primary. The democrats are in the majority by nearly 500,000.

Those considerations and the statement from democratic headquarters followed a week-end which saw Senator Hastings, of Delaware, bitter anti-New Dealer and long a key figure on the republican side of the senate, announce he would not be a candidate for re-election.

"Registration figures continue to reveal the largest democratic enrollment in history," a statement by the national committee said, "this is further supported by the exceedingly large primary vote cast for President Roosevelt even though he is virtually without opposition for renomination. The democratic vote in many states has been in excess of the total cast for competing republican presidential candidates."

The statement said that Pennsylvania newspapers predicted light voting in the primary there because of the absence of contests. Mr. Roosevelt drew, however, it added, an estimated total of about 750,000 votes, "the largest ever recorded for a presidential candidate in a Pennsylvania primary."

This total, the statement added, was 150,000 greater than the total cast in the 1934 primary "when there were hot contests for the senatorial and gubernatorial nominations."

West Virginia's registrations, it continued, show a democratic margin of 103,000, where the republicans in the 1934 primaries had an excess of 22,000.

"In 1932, although the registered republicans outnumbered the democrats by 172,800," the statement said, "Oregon, 'President Roosevelt easily carried the state in the fall election. This year the estimated republican registration has been reduced by approximately 100,000. The California figures, recently given, show a tremendous democratic majority."

'YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!'

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DELAYED WEIGHT LOSS.

If you have dieted in vain and exercised until you are pink in the face, but have lost nothing but your disposition, you probably feel that what is cracked up to be a

Weight loss cannot be run on a time schedule, so the fact that you have not reduced does not mean that you are not on your way to a better figure. Some of the slow starters finish with the best figures.

Experiments by Dr. L. H. Newburgh have shown that in some cases fatty tissue is replaced by water, temporarily preventing the registration of weight loss. His findings should cheer the conscientious reducer whose weight loss is retarded. In one case, the reducer failed to lose any weight over a two-week period of strenuous dieting, although according to her energy output she burned six pounds of stored fat. It was found that the lost fat was replaced by water storage. However, during the second two weeks, registered weight loss total nine pounds, including six pounds of stored water.

You may go for weeks without the slightest change in your weight registration. Those of you who so far have failed to lose may think your efforts useless and your outlook hopeless, but this is no time to give up. Any day may see the turning point in your weight career. With obstinate delay in weight loss, sometimes the results of a long period of dieting finally may be lumped together. In Wisconsin, the statement said, showed on the basis of revised primary figures, 215,000 more votes cast for President Roosevelt than for Senator Borah, the leading candidate in the republican primaries.

Water retention is not to be confused with water drinking. There seems to be no connection between the two, and reducers particularly need liberal quantities of water.

There is a rule about water drinking which must be considered: Excess water with the meals or at the end of the meal may dilute the stomach, creating a greater capacity for food. Since the first concern of the reducer is to shrink (rather than stretch) the stomach, and thus lessen the appetite, it is wise to limit all mealtime liquids to a total of eight ounces. Between meals you should have from eight to ten glasses of water.

It is possible that while you have not lost in pounds, you have lost in inches. It is not unusual for measurements to change before weight loss is indicated. Keep your spirits up by using the tape measure as well as the scales. Don't let temporary discouragement send you back to your old habits of overeating.

LAPS SAID PLANNING 21-INCH GUN WARSHIP

London Fears U. S. and Britain May Be Forced to Denounce Treaty.

LONDON, May 3.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports that the Japanese admiralty is considering laying down a 55,000-ton battleship, armed with 21-inch guns, brought open fears in London today the latest treaty may never be effective.

While officials stated no confirmation for the reports had been received, the effect of such buildings was discussed in the press.

The British, meanwhile, are proceeding on the basis that the treaty will become effective.

Contingent upon ratification by the three signatories, the United States, Great Britain and France, the treaty becomes effective next January 1. But the document is so full of safeguarding and escape clauses that almost any excuse could be used to back out of the agreement.

Disquieting news that Japan, which booted the naval conference two months before the treaty was drawn, will disclose no information on naval building plans, has led to fears here that either the United States or Great Britain may find it expedient to denounce the pact.

These Japanese reports appear to have blasted all hopes Japan would find it possible either to join the treaty or tacitly conform with its provisions for tonnage limitation and exchange of ship building information. The treaty was left open for signature by Japan and Italy.

UNION BAG AND PAPER SHOWS 20 PCT. PROFIT

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Union Bag & Paper Company today reported net profit in the 12 months ended March 31 totaled $275,008, equal to approximately $1.03 a share on the capital stock.

A statement to stockholders said this profit was about 20 per cent greater than it was for the 12 months ended December 31, 1935, and more than double that for the 12 months ended September 30, 1935.

The company's new pulp and paper mill and bag factory at Savannah, Ga., now being completed, will start operations in July. "The material reduction in manufacturing costs made possible by the mill will be reflected in profits during the second half of the current year," said the statement.

YOUNG NEGRO IS SLAIN; ALLEGED KILLER NAMED

Stabbed during a mysterious altercation in a building in the 300 block of Germund street at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, Henry Charles "Lips" Daniel, 21-year-old negro, of 386 Oliver alley, was pronounced dead on arrival at Grady hospital.

Police were informed, they reported, that Daniel was stabbed by another negro named Ed King, address unknown. They began a hunt for King last night.

I will offer for sale to highest bidder for cash in the office of the Referee in Bankruptcy at 225 Grant Building, at 6 o'clock a. m. on May 5, 1936, the open accounts receivable of the Brown Coal Co., subject to the confirmation of the court. For further information see the undersigned.

ELLIS MCLELLAND,
Trustee, Brown Coal Co.
702 Atlanta National Building,
Atlanta, Ga. Telephone WA. 6063.

GEORGIA COUNTY TO THE SUPERIOR COURT OF SAID COUNTY.

The petition of A. C. KNIGHT, S. N. FORRESTER, C. H. SIMPSON, W. A. JOHNSON, and J. P. MCNAIL, citizens of the State of Georgia, respectfully shows:

1. That they desire for themselves, their associates, and successors, to be incorporated and made a body politic under the name and style of
2. MERCHANDISE-INTERSTATE GROCERY CO., INC.

for a period of twenty (20) years.

The principal office of said corporation shall be in the City of Atlanta, State of Georgia, and the capital stock shall never exceed the amount of One Hundred Thousand ($100,000) Dollars, and shall never be less than the amount of Eight Thousand ($8,000) Dollars. The capital stock shall be increased or decreased only after three-fourths of the holders of Common Stock, by their votes, have authorized such changes. Each holder of Common Stock shall be entitled to only one (1) vote on all matters, including policy, dividends, and capital structure, regardless of the number of common shares each stockholder owns. The Preferred Stock shall be non-voting, Preferred as to dividends, and shall be six (6) per cent, cumulative in character, and shall be subject to recall and retirement by the corporation at its will upon the corporation's paying the par value of the stock, plus unpaid cumulative dividends, to the recorded holders thereof. The present issue of capital stock shall be Ten Thousand ($10,000) Dollars. Eight Thousand ($8,000) Dollars of which shall be Common stock, and Two Thousand ($2,000) Dollars shall be Preferred, with a par value of Twenty-Five ($25) Dollars per share for each of said classes.

Petitioners desire the right to sue and be sued; to plead and be pleaded; to have and use a common seal; to make all necessary by-laws and regulations, and to do all other things that may be necessary and proper for the successful carrying on of said business, including the right to buy, own and sell real and personal property, its assets, and to incur and be bound by its obligations for the purposes of the corporation, and to issue notes and bonds as evidence of indebtedness incurred, or which may be incurred, in the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and to secure the same by mortgage, security deed, or other form of loan under existing laws.

Petitioners desire the right to invest surplus funds of the corporation in stocks and bonds of other corporations, and to use its surplus to recall and retire its Preferred stock and to purchase its own Common stock, to be held as Treasury stock.

Petitioners desire for said corporation the power and authority to apply for and to accept amendments to its Charter of either form or substance by a vote of a majority of its common stockholders. They also ask authority for said corporation to wind up its affairs, liquidate and discontinue its business at any time it may determine to do so by a vote of three-fourths of its common stockholders.

WHEREFORE, petitioners pray to be incorporated under the name and style aforesaid, with the powers, privileges and immunities herein set forth, and as are now or hereafter be allowed a corporation of similar character under the laws of Georgia.

SPORTS DRESS BECOMES SMART SUIT.

With "Wrapped-In" Waistline Jacket. This is the type of sports costume that will go everywhere this summer. The simple dress with cape sleeves is so young looking and smart. It buttons right up to the high round collarless neck.

Wear it for active or for spectator sports. You can even wear it to town with its nifty little "nipped-in" waistline jacket.

Yellow and cocoa-brown striped linen-like weave cotton made this smart dress. Buttons and the narrow leather belt are cocoa-brown. The jacket is plain yellow.

Can't you imagine how ravishing it would be, too, in white or pastel tub silks, white sharkskin or any similar silks.

Style No. 1723 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 16 requires 3-1/4 yards of 35-inch material for dress; with 2-1/4 yards of 39-inch material for jacket.

Our illustrated home dressmaking spring book will enable you to have smart clothes and more of them for less money. Each step in the making of a dress is shown with illustrated diagrams. Send for your copy today.

Price of book 15 cents.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Wrap coin carefully. Do not send stamps.

EFFORTS TO INCREASE CCC STRENGTH BEGUN

Georgia and Other Southern States Directed to Add to Quotas.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP)—In a new move to bring the Civilian Conservation Corps back to its authorized strength of 350,000, Robert Fechner, the director, today directed state enrollment officers to disregard previous quotas and accept any qualified boy from a relief family.

At the same time, Fechner authorized enrollments in eight southern states omitted from the original schedule while the War Department ordered corps areas commanders to report on the number of recruits needed in each state.

Estimating that between 30,000 and 35,000 new members would be required, Fechner attributed slowness of enrollments to improving business conditions.

In addition to the present 22,000 shortage of junior CCC members, Fechner said another 10,000 or more would have to take private jobs during the next two weeks. The enlistment period, which began on April 15, was extended until May 15 last week.

Today's order was the first making it possible to shift enrollees from one state to camps in others.

The eight states in which enlistments were authorized are Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida, which are in the fourth corps area.
